Essays on Saving, Bequests, Altruism, and Life-cycle Planning Laurence J. Kotlikoff,2001-06-22 This collection of essays coauthored with other distinguished economists offers new perspectives on saving intergenerational economic ties retirement planning and the distribution of wealth The book links life cycle microeconomic behavior to important macroeconomic outcomes including the roughly 50 percent postwar decline in America's rate of saving and its increasing wealth inequality The book traces these outcomes to the government's five decade long policy of transferring in the form of annuities ever larger sums from young savers to old spenders The book presents new theoretical and empirical analyses of altruism that rule out the possibility that private intergenerational transfers have offset those by the government While rational life cycle behavior can explain broad economic outcomes the book also shows that a significant minority of households fail to make coherent life cycle saving and insurance decisions These mistakes are compounded by reliance on conventional financial planning tools which the book compares with Economic Security Planner ESPlanner a new life cycle financial planning software program The application of ESPlanner to U S data indicates that most Americans approaching retirement age are saving at much lower rates than they should be given potential major cuts in Social Security benefits

Failed States and the Origins of Violence Tiffany Howard, 2016-04-15 What makes a terrorist Is an individual inherently predisposed to be attracted to political violence or does exposure to a certain environment desensitize them in such a way that violence represents a viable mode for addressing political grievances Identifying state failure as the impetus for political violence this book addresses these questions and focuses on why existing extremist groups find failed states so attractive Utilizing global barometer data Tiffiany Howard examines the underpinnings of individual support for political violence and argues that an insidious pattern of deprivation within failed states drives ordinary citizens to engage in and support extreme acts of political violence A rigorous examination of four regions plagued by a combination of failed states and political violence Sub Saharan Africa The Middle East and North Africa Southeast and South Asia and Latin America this text draws parallels to arrive at a single conclusion that failed states are a natural breeding ground for terrorism and political violence
