Wartime and War Zones Reinhard Johler, Christian Marchetti, Monique Scheer, 2014-04-09 World War I marks a well known turning point in anthropology and this volume is the first to examine the variety of forms it took in Europe. Distinct national traditions emerged and institutes were founded partly due to collaborations with the military. Researchers in the cultural sciences used war zones to gain access to informants prisoner of war and refugee camps occupied territories even the front lines. Anthropologists tailored their inquiries to aid the war effort contributed to interpretations of the war as a struggle between races and assessed the warlike nature of the Balkan region whose crises were key to the outbreak of the Great War.

The Correspondence of Ezra Pound and the Frobenius Institute, 1930-1959 Ezra Pound, 2024-02-22 Collecting in full for the first time the correspondence between Ezra Pound and members of Leo Frobenius Forschungsinstitut für Kulturmorphologie in Frankfurt across a 30 year period this book sheds new light on an important but previously unexplored influence on Pound's controversial intellectual development in the Fascist era. Ezra Pound's long term interest in anthropology and ethnography exerted a profound influence on early 20th century literary Modernism. These letters reveal the extent of the influence of Frobenius concept of Paideuma on Pound's poetic and political writings during this period and his growing engagement with the culture of Nazi Germany. Annotated throughout the letters are supported by contextualising essays by leading Modernist scholars as well as relevant contemporary published articles by Pound himself and his leading correspondent at the Institute the American Douglas C Fox. Ibss: Anthropology: 2003 Compiled by the British Library of Political and Economic Science, 2004-12 First published in 1952 the International Bibliography of the Social Sciences anthropology economics political science and sociology is well established as a major bibliographic reference for students researchers and librarians in the social sciences worldwide. This applies to figures from Durkheim to Derrida Mauss to Foucault though there are partial exceptions such as Lévi Strauss and Bourdieu. It has led to a contrast being made especially perhaps in the Anglo Saxon world between French theory relying on rational inference and British empiricism based on induction and generally skeptical of theory. While there are contrasts between the two traditions this is essentially a false view. It is this aspect of French anthropology that this collection addresses in the belief that the neglect of many of these figures outside France is seriously distorting our view of the French tradition of anthropology overall At the same time the collection will provide a positive view of the French tradition of ethnography stressing its combination of technical competence and the sympathies of its practitioners for its various ethnographic subjects Cold War Anthropology David H. Picturing Culture Jay Ruby, 2000-08-15 Here Jay Ruby a founder of visual anthropology distills his thirty year exploration of the relationship of film and anthropology Spurred by a conviction that the ideal of an anthropological cinema has not even remotely begun to be realized Ruby argues that ethnographic filmmakers should generate a set of critical standards analogous to those for written ethnographies Cinematic artistry and the desire to entertain he argues can eclipse the original intention which is to provide an anthropological representation of the subjects The book begins with analyses of key filmmakers Robert Flaherty Robert Garner and Tim Asch who have striven to generate profound statements about human behavior on film Ruby then discusses the idea of research film Eric Michaels and indigenous media the ethics of representation the nature of ethnography anthropological knowledge and film and lays the groundwork for a critical approach to the field that borrows selectively from film communication media and cultural studies Witty and original yet intensely theoretical this collection is a major contribution to the field of visual anthropology

Becoming an Anthropologist Gerald Mars, 2015-10-05 Mars graphic and often vivid narrative can be read simply as the anecdotal memoirs of an anthropologist The experiences he recounts are sometimes hilarious touch occasionally on the dangerous and are always sensitively and expertly explored But for those who want to know more the book's expansive footnotes and references to key sources also offer a stimulating introduction to social anthropology its theories and its methods Mars begins by describing his childhood life in a tightly structured working class community during World War Two He then contrasts this with an account of the hidden underlife of an entrepreneurial crime prone seaside resort Blackpool where he worked as a picker barker Two years experience of National Service provides an account of the social organisation of the RAF followed by discussion of aspects of the organisation of Cambridge University What follows then is a lifetime spent living and working in different cultures around the world The results are continual insights gained by comparison and contrasts that illuminate aspects not only of other cultures but also of our own
