An Examination of Hunting Scenes by Peter Paul Rubens Alethea Henry Barnes, Geraldine Fowle, 2009. Peter Paul Rubens' hunting scenes have been known for their energy and level of detail in the animals portrayed. His paintings of exotic animals demonstrate his skill in rendering subjects he may not have seen in the wild. Rubens drew from animal lore, etchings, zoological texts, taxidermy specimens, and royal zoos to give his animals a sense of realism. His animals possess emotive qualities which are generally not found in hunting scenes previous to the baroque period. This study will explore Rubens' use of exotic and domestic animals, their roles in the composition, each animal's iconography in the history of western art, and their relationship to their hunters. Six hunting scenes created by Rubens will be examined with these parameters in mind. This thesis includes recent scholarship on Rubens' hunting scenes which focus on the sources of Rubens' painted animals and their iconographical representations in the history of western art.

Rural Space in the Middle Ages and Early Modern Age Albrecht Classen,2012-05-29 Older research on the premodern world limited its focus on the Church the court and more recently on urban space The present volume invites readers to consider the meaning of rural space both in light of ecocritical readings and social historical approaches While previous scholars examined the figure of the peasant in the premodern world the current volume combines a large number of specialized studies that investigate how the natural environment and the appearance of members of the rural population interacted with the world of the court and of the city The experience in rural space was important already for writers and artists in the premodern era as the large variety of scholarly approaches indicates The present volume signals how much the surprisingly close interaction between members of the aristocratic and of the peasant class determined many literary and art historical works In a surprisingly large number of cases we can even discover elements of utopia hidden in rural space We also observe how much the rural world was a significant element already in early medieval mentality Moreover as many authors point out the impact of natural forces on premodern society was tremendous if not catastrophic
