Modern Plantation In The Third World:

The Modern Plantation in the Third World Edgar Graham, Ingrid Floering, 2024-02-01 Originally published in 1984 this was the first study to define and rationalise the character and functions of the plantation in the contemporary world The author Edgar Graham was uniquely placed to do this having had long experience of Unilever's plantations in West Africa Zaire Malaysia and the Pacific Writing as a pragmatist from observed fact his starting point was the fact that the modern plantation bears very little resemblance to that of the past on which most hostile accounts are still based Two changes altered the very nature of the issue First the 20th Century plantation existed within an economic framework controlled by independent governments Secondly the rapid development in technology has revolutionised most aspects of plantation production The result it is argued is that the modern plantation offers host governments the option of using this as the most efficient way of utilising available factors of production to provide a maximum social return Exemplified by case studies this study presents a powerful argument for the continue use of the plantation system when properly applied to a variety of tropical crops

Unfolding Crisis in Assam's Tea Plantations Deepak K. Mishra, Vandana Upadhyay, Atul Sarma, 2014-03-21 As the Indian economy integrates into global circuits of production exchange and accumulation the burdens of adjustment are shared unequally by different sectors classes and regions This study unravels the livelihood strategies and living conditions of labour in the tea gardens of Assam The tea sector has been undergoing a crisis since the 1990s with stagnant production decline in exports and closures of many tea gardens leading to large scale retrenchments in the labour force Based on a detailed analysis of secondary data and primary field research the study examines the extent types and implications of inter generational occupational mobility or immobility among tea garden labourers in Assam In the process it reflects on how even a sector that had brought capital and labour from outside and contributed significantly to the country s export earnings failed to create dynamic growth linkages within the local economy The experience of the labour force in the Assam tea sector the authors argue is important for making sense not only of the development dynamics of the region but of the contradictory ways in which forces of globalisation and neo liberal reforms have been reshaping the worlds of labourers in the margins The book will be of interest to students and scholars of labour studies development studies management studies and studies of north east India as well as to policy makers and those in the tea industry

Rubber Manufacturing in Malaysia

C.C. Goldthorpe,2015-06-25 Malaysia s rubber manufacturing sector is a prime example of an industry based on a locally produced agricultural resource In Rubber Manufacturing in Malaysia C C Goldthorpe draws on industrial policy theory along with many years of practical experience to examine the growth of rubber manufacturing in Malaysia Over the past century a series of technological discoveries resulted in the worldwide rise of a rubber production industry that manufactures tyres for motor vehicles engineering components household gloves and medical products Goldthorpe argues that the production of rubber goods has played a significant part in the transformation of the country from primary commodity producer to newly industrialized economy a position he supports by tracing the historical development of rubber based industrial production and the effects of government policies promoting industrialization Taken as a whole the rubber industry is vertically integrated with locally produced natural and synthetic rubbers used by the rubber manufacturing sector to produce latex products and general rubber goods for export markets Winners and Losers D. Abundance and Economic Development R. M. Auty,2001-06-28 Since the 1960s the per capita incomes of the resource poor countries have grown significantly faster than those of the resource abundant countries In fact in recent years economic growth has been inversely proportional to the share of natural resource rents in GDP so that the small mineral driven economies have performed least well and the oil driven economies worst of all Yet the mineral driven resource rich economies have high growth potential because the mineral exports boost their capacity to invest and to import Resource Abundance and Economic Development explains the disappointing performance of resource abundant countries by extending the growth accounting framework to include natural and social capital The resulting synthesis identifies two contrasting development trajectories the competitive industrialization of the resource poor countries and the staple trap of many resource abundant countries The resource poor countries are less prone to policy failure than the resource abundant countries because social pressures force the political state to align its interests with the majority poor and follow relatively prudent policies Resource abundant countries are more likely to engender political states in which vested interests vie to capture resource surpluses rents at the expense of policy coherence A longer dependence on primary product exports also delays industrialization heightens income inequality and retards skill accumulation Fears of Dutch disease encourage efforts to force industrialization through trade policy to protect infant industry The resulting slow maturing manufacturing sector demands transfers from the primary sector that outstrip the natural resource rents and sap the competitiveness of the economy The chapters in this collection draw upon historical analysis and models to show that a growth collapse is not the inevitable outcome of resource abundance and that policy counts Malaysia a rare example of successful resource abundant development is contrasted with Ghana Bolivia Saudi Arabia Mexico and Argentina which all experienced a growth collapse The book also explores policies for reviving collapsed economies with reference to Costa Rica South Africa Russia and Central Asia It demonstrates the importance of initial conditions to successful economic reform Natural Resource Endowment and the Fallacy of Development in Cameroon Fonjong, Lotsmart,2019-10-05 Cameroon is rich in petroleum minerals tropical forests wildlife water systems fertile lands and much more Paradoxically however most citizens live in abject poverty and without jobs potable water electricity good healthcare and roads This book is a thoughtful interrogation of some of the structural factors driving persistent poverty in Cameroon in the midst of natural resource abundance It engages in a multidimensional critical analysis of the impact of natural resources on basic development indicators and concludes that good resource governance and sound management are the missing link Natural resources alone will not create socio economic prosperity void of good management with a clear development vision and strategy in Cameroon The book assembles a wide diversity of analysis views perspectives and recommendations from economists development experts social and political scientists on Cameroon s current development inertia What emerges in the end is a coherent interdisciplinary analysis of the natural resource development paradox as it plays out in an African setting Theories and good practices from Africa and beyond are systematically applied to identify and critique present policy and management approaches while providing alternative options that can unlock Cameroon s natural resource wealth for national prosperity

Agricultural Development in the World Periphery Vicente Pinilla, Henry Willebald, 2018-02-06 This book brings together analysis on the conditions of agricultural sectors in countries and regions of the world s peripheries from a wide variety of international contributors The contributors to this volume proffer an understanding of the processes of agricultural transformations and their interaction with the overall economies of Africa Asia and Latin America Looking at the nineteenth and twentieth centuries the onset of modern economic growth the book studies the relationship between agriculture and other economic sectors exploring the use of resources land labour capital and the influence of institutional and technological factors in the long run performance of agricultural activities Pinilla and Willebald challenge the notion that agriculture played a negligible role in promoting economic development in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries when the impulse towards industrialization in the developing world was more impactful

Women Plantation Workers Shobita Jain, Rhoda Reddock, 2020-08-25 This pioneering collection of essays brings together a description and analysis of women workers and the socio economic systems of plantations world wide The plantation remains a formidable force in many areas of the world and new trends towards tree farming call for further examination of its agriculture Women have in the past constituted a considerable precentage of the work force in this milieu and continue to do so Using specific case studies of historical and contemporary plantations an account is given of the history of female labour focusing on the colonial and post colonial eras The essays examine reasons for women s degraded status and emphasize in particular issues relating to migrant workers The gradual move away from traditional family roles is to some extent reflected in variations in the position of the female plantation worker However where inequalities in class and status continue to characterize plantation life capitalist and patriarchal control prevails Both chilling and bracing the sufferings of plantation labourers may seem remote to most of us but they are still very much part of the contemporary world Providing a close insight into the lives of the female protagonists these essays have given an opportunity for their stories to be heard and conceptual contrasts across entries      Merchants to Multinationals Geoffrey Jones, 2002-03-07 Merchants to Multinationals examines the evolution of multinational trading companies from the eighteenth century to the present day. During the Industrial Revolution British merchants established overseas branches which became major trade intermediaries and subsequently engaged in foreign direct investment. Complex multinational business groups emerged controlling large investments in natural resources processing and services in Asia, Latin America and Africa. While theories of the firm predict the demise over time of merchant firms, this book identifies the continued resilience of British trading companies despite the changing political and business environments of the twentieth century. Like Japanese trading companies, they reinvented themselves in successive generations. The competences of the trading companies resided in their information gathering, relationship building, human resource and corporate governance systems. This book provides a new dimension to the literature on international business through the focus on multinational service firms and its evolutionary approach based on confidential business records.

Metropolis and Hinterland Neville Morley, 2002-12-19 Ancient Rome was one of the greatest cities of the pre industrial era. Like other such great cities, it has often been deemed parasitic, a drain on the resources of the society that supported it. Rome's huge population was maintained not by trade or manufacture but by the taxes and rents of the empire. It was the archetypal consumer city. However, such a label does not do full justice to the impact of the city on its hinterland. This book examines the historiography of the consumer city model and reappraises the relationship between Rome and Italy. Drawing on archaeological work and comparative evidence, the author shows how the growth of the city can be seen as the major influence on the development of the Italian economy in this period, as its demands for food and migrants promoted changes in agriculture, marketing systems and urbanisation throughout the peninsula.
