Science, Technology and Society Wenceslao J. González, 2005 The emphasis on the realm of Science Technology and Society or Science and Technology Studies may have the same degree of relevance that the historical turn had in the past It is a social turn which affects philosophy of science as well as philosophy of technology It includes a new vision of the aims processes and results of scientific activities and technological doings because the focus of attention is on several aspects of science and technology which used to be considered as secondary or even irrelevant This turn highlights science and technology as social undertakings rather than intellectual contents According to this new vision there are several important changes as to what should be studied the objects of research how it should be studied the method and what the consequences for those studies are The new focus of attention can be seen in many changes and among them are several of special interest

- a from what science and technology are in themselves mainly epistemic contents
- b from the language and structure of basic science to the characteristics of applied science and the applications of science
- c from technology as a feature through which human beings control their natural surroundings a step beyond technics due to the contribution of science to technology as a social practice and an instrument of power
- d from the role of internal values necessary for mature science and innovative technology to the role of contextual or external values cultural political economic of science and technology

 everyone agrees that life has changed in our technological society whether the contrast is with earlier stages in Western culture or with non-Western cultures Modernization is just one of various terms that have been applied to the process by which we have arrived at the peculiar lifestyle typical of our age whatever the term for the process almost all analysts agree in finding technology to be one of its key ingredients This is the judgment of critics of all sorts anthropologists historians literary figures sociologists theologians Volume 4 in the Philosophy and Technology series brings the perspectives of philosophers to bear on the issue of characterizing contemporary life mainly in high technology societies Some of the philosophers look at the issue directly Others focus on work life or on the living arrangements that surround or condition or offer refuge from work life in technological society Still others reflect on particular technologies especially biotechnology and computer technology that are increasingly affecting both work and family life There is also a paper on the nature of thinking in technological praxis along with two papers on whether it is appropriate to export this sort of thinking to Third World countries and another paper on the issue of responsibility in technology which would have fit better in volume 3 of the series entitled Technology and Responsibility 1987 Finally volume 4 closes with a broad ranging bibliography that takes work and technology as its focus Technology as Freedom Ronald C. Tobey, 2022-07-15 Before 1930 the domestic market for electrical appliances was segmented but New Deal policies and programs created a true mass market reshaping the electrical and housing markets and guiding them toward mandated social goals The New Deal identified electrical refrigeration as a key technology to reform domestic labor raise family health and build family assets New Deal incentives led to nearly fifty percent of Title I National Housing Act loans being used to buy electric refrigerators in the 1930s New Deal policies ultimately created the mass commodity culture of home owning families that typified the conservative 1950s This
