Curriculum Guide for Islamic Studies Talat

Sultan, 1991, 11-15. While women's concerns in Malaysia were subsumed under nationalist concerns during British colonialism the 1980s signalled a turning point. Women could discuss topics in relation to their everyday experiences such as domestic violence. That same period also saw Islamisation gather momentum. Integral to Islamisation was an emphasis on the role of women as wives and mothers so as to maintain the integrity of the patriarchal family. The domestic household and marital issues naturally became key concerns in Islamisation discourse. Muslimah NGOs emerged during this period responding both to state and everyday discourses on Islam in Malaysian society. One principal response of the NGOs was to go back to Islamic and alternative sources of knowledge. These responses were also informed by particular orientations towards Islam such as neo traditionalism and neo modernism. Utilising Mannheim's sociology of knowledge approach, What It Means to Be a Muslimah examines gender activist discourse in Malaysia by focusing on the religious orientations of the activists interviewed. It argues that Muslimah activists in Malaysia generally adopt a neo modernist mode of thinking when discussing various sources of knowledge and the specific marital issues of polygamy and child marriage but demonstrate a diversity in modes of thinking where they interchangeably pick and choose positions that correspond to either neo traditionalism or neo modernism when explaining a woman's role in Islam.
