Racial/Ethnic Patterns of Cancer in the United States, 1988-1992 Barry A. Miller, 1997-07 Hutchinson focuses initially on movement as concept and metaphor affirming its centrality in the conceptualization of all discursive activities He draws on an array of authors including Heraclitus Plato Longinus Rabelais Nietzsche Saussure Frances Yates Kristeva Meschonnic and Deleuze to demonstrate the motion of discourse and of those engaged in it He then turns to Cervantes novels to show how metaphors of movement and travel appearing on nearly every page dominate the conceptualization of the soul the self desire love and life processes Viewing travel as a composite of concurrent modes of experience with differing content and rhythms Hutchinson considers the concept of errancy the nature of place and the traveler s shifting relations with it and the values that travel may have as a motion displacement encounter and goal Of key importance are the means of improvisation developed en route His re examination of Bakhtin s chronotope in light of Cervante s novels reveals the dynamic character of time spaces in which travelers move He shows moreover that unlike typical Renaissance utopias the many worlds of Cervantes novels have the principles of becoming and dissolution inscribed in them Reflecting on the narrative of journeys both as memory and invention Hutchinson concludes with an examination of the relations between travel experience and travel narrative and a discussion of the whereabouts of writers and readers in Cervantes novels The narration of journeys he argues necessitates and encourages improvisatory writing Racial/ethnic Patterns of Cancer in the United States,

Developing Cultural Competence in Asian-American and Pacific Islander Communities, 1999      Women of Color Health Data Book, 1998      Tobacco Use Among United States

Racial/ethnic Minority Groups United States. Department of Health and Human Services, 1998 This Surgeon General s report on tobacco use summarizes current information on risk factors and patterns related to tobacco use among members of four major racial and ethnic minority groups in the United States African Americans American Indians and Alaska Natives Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders and Hispanics In addition this report presents information on national and regional efforts to curtail consumption of tobacco products among members of these four groups Previous Surgeon General s reports on smoking and health have briefly summarized findings related to one or more of the racial ethnic groups covered in this report but this is the first Surgeon General s report to concentrate specifically on the four major racial ethnic groups in the United States Several factors prompted the development of this report First the information in this report has never before been compiled in one source. Consequently policymakers, community leaders, researchers, and public health workers have had difficulty determining the extent of the problem, identifying gaps in information regarding tobacco use among members of the four groups, or being aware of existing tobacco control programs that have demonstrated effectiveness. Thus incorporating such information into the design and implementation of culturally appropriate services has been difficult. Second, the four racial/ethnic groups currently constitute about one fourth of the population of this country, and the Bureau of the Census projects that by 2050 the non-Hispanic white population in the United States will total only 53 percent. Day 1996 Preventing health problems related to tobacco use among the individuals in racial and ethnic groups will be integral to achieving U.S. public health objectives such as those proposed in Healthy People 2000 National Health Promotion and Disease Prevention Objectives. U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (USDHHS) 1991, 1995 National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS) 1994. This report contributes essential knowledge that must be incorporated into efforts to accomplish the Healthy People 2000 objectives. Native Outreach, 1999. Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, 2002. Atlas of Cancer Mortality in the United States, 1950-94, 1999. Utilizes 1950-1994 mortality data from the National Center for Health Statistics and population estimates from the Census Bureau. Rates by 100,000 person-years are calculated by race, whites, blacks, and sex for different forms of cancer. Includes maps, summary tables, and figures. Accompanying text describes the observed variations for specific cancers and suggests explanations. Dietary Fat and Cancer. American Institute for Cancer Research, 2013-03-09. The annual research conference for 1996 of the American Institute for Cancer Research was again held at the Loews L'Enfant Plaza Hotel in Washington, DC, August 29 and 30. The topic for this, the seventh in the series, was Dietary Fat and Cancer: Genetic and Molecular Mechanisms. Two separate presentations were given as the conference overview: Fat and Cancer: The Epidemiologic Evidence in Perspective. It noted that dietary fat can be saturated (largely from animal or dairy sources) or monounsaturated (mostly from plant sources). Unlike animal fats, fish contain relatively high levels of protective omega-3 fatty acids. Although the hypothesis that dietary fat is associated with cancer is plausible, the mechanisms involved are reasonable, and many animal studies support the hypothesis. There are many obstacles in any direct extrapolation to humans, including imprecise measures of dietary fat intake, variability in individual diets, and species variations. Despite these limitations, there is a weak positive correlation between colon cancer and dietary fat intake, but with substantial differences for various ethnic groups. In the case of breast cancer, there is substantial variation among countries and ethnic groups, but the overall evidence indicated an association with fat in the diet. Epidemiologic studies of dietary fat and prostate cancer are more consistent and most show a positive relationship. However, it was not clear which types of dietary fat were implicated in the effect. The Emperor's New Clothes. Joseph L. Graves, 2001. Graves answers could revise the ways in which humans interact with one another. Choice. A fine start for thinking about race at the dawn of the millennium. American Scientist. Cancer in the Elderly. Carrie P.
