Archer, Jonathan Q. Tritter, 2013-04-03 Rational Choice Theory is flourishing in sociology and is increasingly influential in other disciplines Contributors to this volume are convinced that it provides an inadequate conceptualization of all aspects of decision making of the individuals who make the decisions of the process by which decisions get made and of the context within which decisions get made The critique focuses on the four assumptions which are the bedrock of rational choice rationality the theory's definition of rationality is incomplete and cannot satisfactorily incorporate norms and emotions individualism rational choice is based upon atomistic individual decision makers and cannot account for decisions made by couples groups or other forms of collective action process the assumption of fixed well ordered preferences and perfect information makes the theory inadequate for situations of change and uncertainty aggregation as methodological individualists rational choice theorists can only view structure and culture as aggregates and cannot incorporate structural or cultural influences as emergent properties which have an effect upon decision making The critique is grounded in discussion of a wide range of social issues including race marriage health and education      Foreigners, minorities and integration Sarah Hackett, 2015-11-01 This book explores the arrival and development of Muslim immigrant communities in Britain and Germany during the post 1945 period through the case studies of Newcastle upon Tyne and Bremen It traces Newcastle's South Asian Muslims and Bremen's Turkish Muslims from their initial settlement through to the end of the twentieth century and investigates their behaviour and performance in the areas of employment housing and education At a time at when Islam is sometimes seen as a barrier to integration and harmony in Europe this study demonstrates that this need not be the case In what is the first comparison of Muslim ethnic minorities in Britain and Germany at a local level this book reveals that instances of integration have been frequent It is essential reading for both academics and students with an interest in migration studies modern Britain and Germany and the place of Islam in contemporary Europe      Discourses on Religious Diversity Martin D. Stringer, 2016-05-23 Religious diversity is an ever present and increasingly visible reality in cities across the world It is an issue of immediate concern to city leaders and members of religious communities but do we really know what ordinary members of the public the people who live in the city really think about it Major news items inter religious violence and notorious public events often lead to negative views being expressed especially among those who would not consider themselves to have a religious identity of their own Martin Stringer explores the highly complex series of discourses around religion and religious diversity that are held by ordinary members of the city discourses that are often contradictory in themselves and discourses that show that attitudes to religion vary considerably depending on context and wider local or national narratives Drawing on examples from UK particularly Birmingham one of the UK's most diverse cities Europe and the United States Stringer offers some practical suggestions for ways in which discourses of religious diversity can be managed in the future Students in the fields of religious studies sociology anthropology and urban studies practitioners involved in inter religious debates and church and other faith leaders and politicians should all find this book an invaluable addition to ongoing debates
