Report of the Commission for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes India. Commission for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, 1984      Politics and Policies for Water Resources Management in India M. Dinesh Kumar, 2020-06-29

This comprehensive volume explores the interface between politics and policy making in the water management sector of India. The authors discuss the nature of the political discourse on water management in India and what characterizes this discourse. They also explore how this discourse has influenced the process of framing water related policies in India particularly through the academics-bureaucrat-politician nexus and the growing influence of the civil society groups on policy makers which are the defining feature of this process and which have produced certain policy outcomes that are not supported by sufficient scientific evidence. The book reveals that the social and management sciences despite being increasingly relevant in contemporary water management are unable to impress upon traditional engineer-dominated water administration to seek solutions to complex water problems owing to a lack of interdisciplinary perspective in their research. The authors also examine the current deadlock in undertaking sectoral reforms due to existing water policies not being honoured. This collection includes several research studies which suggest legal-institutional policy alternatives for addressing the problems in areas such as irrigation, rural and urban water supply, flood control and adaptation to climate variability and change. It was originally published as a special issue of the International Journal of Water Resources Development.

and their indelible impact on those who live at the city's margins. The book discusses that previously cities such as Mumbai grew by accumulating a vast hinterland of slum dwellers who depressed wages and supplied cheap labour to the city's industrial economy. However, it goes on to show that the new growth of cities such as Bangalore, Hyderabad and Madras in south India, or Delhi and Calcutta in the north of India, is more capital intensive, export driven and oriented towards the information technology and service sectors. The book explains that these cities have attracted a new elite of young educated workers with money to spend and an outlook on life that is often a complex mix of modern ideas and conservative tradition. It goes on to cover topics such as the politics of town planning, consumer culture and the struggles among multiple identities in the city. By tracing the genealogies of cities, it gives a useful insight into the historical conditioning that determines how cities negotiate new changes and influences. There will soon be more mega cities in South Asia than anywhere else in the world, and this book provides an in-depth analysis of this growth. It will be of interest to students and scholars of South Asian History, Politics and Anthropology, as well as those working in the fields of urbanisation and globalisation.
