Existen diversas formas de sistematizar la teoría social. La más común es la histórica a saber la que se basa en la cronología de los aportes que los grandes científicos sociales nos han legado. La propuesta que queremos hacer en esta serie de libros es diferente. Haremos un intento por sistematizar el pensamiento de las y los grandes científicos sociales a partir de sus postulados fundamentales dentro de 6 Grandes Escuelas la que basa sus aportes en las representaciones sociales la que intenta explicar el mundo social a partir de la capacidad de acción que pueden desplegar los actores colectivos la que sostiene sus preceptos en los análisis sobre la estructura social el poder y la dominación la que parte de la perspectiva crítica del patriarcado y su oposición desde el feminismo la que centra sus análisis en la crítica a la globalización neoliberal y la que propone alternativas concretas para la reconstrucción del mundo actual. Este primer libro de la serie se centrará en la escuela de las representaciones colectivas la cual parte del postulado de Durkheim que nuestro mundo exterior es una construcción social que nos antecede y nos conforma. Somos productos sociales no somos productos individuales. Numerosos autores siguen posteriormente esta perspectiva durkheimiana tomando para sus análisis las representaciones colectivas o sociales y la construcción social de la realidad. Los más representativos son Serge Moscovici, Denise Jodelet, Peter Berger y Thomas Luckmann.
