Policing the Media David D. Perlmutter,2000-02-15 Policing the Media is an investigation into one of the paradoxes of the mass media age Issues events and people that we see most on our television screens are often those that we understand the least David Perlmutter examined this issue as it relates to one of the most frequently portrayed groups of people on television police officers Policing the Media is a report on the ethnography of a police department derived from the author s experience riding on patrol with officers and joining the department as a reserve policeman Drawing upon interviews Perlmutter describes the lives and philosophies of street patrol officers He finds that cops hold ambiguous attitudes toward their television characters for much of TV copland is fantastic and unrealistic Moreover the officers perceive that the public s attitudes toward law enforcement and crime are directly influenced by mass media This in turn he suggests influences the way that they themselves behave and perform on the street and that unreal and surreal expectations of them are propagated by television cop shows This cycle of perceptual influence may itself profoundly impact the contemporary criminal justice system on the street in the courts and in the hearts and minds of ordinary people

Pulling Newspapers Apart Bob Franklin,2008-03-07 Pulling Newspapers Apart Analysing Print Journalism explores contemporary UK national and local newspapers at a significant and pivotal moment in their development when some pundits

Cunliffe,2011-05-27 Since the early 1990s unexplained infant death has been reformulated as a criminal justice problem within many western societies This shift has produced wrongful convictions in more than one jurisdiction This book uses a detailed case study of the murder trial and appeals of Kathleen Folbigg to examine the pragmatics of proof beyond a reasonable doubt It explores how legal process medical knowledge and expectations of motherhood work together when a mother is charged with killing infants who have died in mysterious circumstances The author argues that Folbigg who remains in prison was wrongly convicted The book also employs Folbigg s trial and appeals to consider what lessons courts have learned from prior wrongful convictions such as those of Sally Clark and Angela Cannings The author s research demonstrates that the Folbigg court was misled about the state of medical knowledge regarding infant death and that the case proceeded on the incorrect assumption that behavioural and scientific evidence provided independent proofs of guilt Individual chapters critically assess the relationships between medical research and expert testimony the operation of unexamined cultural assumptions about good mothering and the manner in which contested cases are reported by the press as overwhelming Murder in Our Midst Romyne Smith Fullerton,Maggie Jones Patterson,2021 As immigration technological change and globalization reshape the world journalism plays a central role in shaping how the public adjusts to moral and material upheaval This in turn raises the ethical stakes for journalism In short reporters have a choice in the way they tell these stories They can spread panic and discontent or encourage adaptation and reconciliation In Murder in Our Midst Romyne Smith Fullerton and Maggie Jones Patterson compare journalists crime coverage decisions in North America and select Western European countries as a key to examine culturally constructed concepts like privacy public public right to know and justice Drawing from sample news coverage national and international codes of ethics and style guides and close to 200 personal interviews with news professionals and academics they highlight differences in crime news reporting practices and emphasize how crime stories both reflect and shape each nation s attitudes in unique ways Murder in Our Midst is both an empirical look at varying journalistic styles and an ethical evaluation of whether particular story telling approaches do or do not serve the practice of democracy The New Politics of Surveillance and Visibility Richard V. Ericson,Kevin D.

Haggerty,2006-01-01 Since the terrorist attacks of September 2001 surveillance has been put forward as the essential tool for the war on terror with new technologies and policies offering police and military operatives enhanced opportunities for monitoring suspect populations The last few years have also seen the public s consumer tastes become increasingly codified with data mines of demographic information such as postal codes and purchasing records Additionally surveillance has become a form of entertainment with reality shows becoming the dominant genre on network and cable television In The Media, Process, and the Social Construction of Crime Gregg Barak, 2013-10-28 First published in 1995 One of the most pervasive forms of social control in our society is the mass media The public learns from television newspapers magazines movies and books what is happening in the world and how to interpret it The problem however is that full or complete interpretations of reality are not presented In short reality itself clear and unadorned is not to be found in the information provided by the media Instead media presentations consist of those various viewpoints that succeed in capturing the minds and imaginations of the masses or in terms of the 1992 presidential campaign that successfully put the winning spin on information Barak and others believe that criminologists should participate in the various media presentations of crime and justice By bringing their knowledge to bear on media presentations criminologists can help make some news more representative and less distorted of the social reality of crime
