Fair Ways Robert J. Robertson, 2005 Annotation In the summer of 1955 six African American golfers in Beaumont Texas began attacking the Jim Crow caste system when they filed a federal lawsuit for the right to play the municipal golf course The golfers and their African American lawyers went to federal court and asked a conservative white Republican judge to render a decision that would not only integrate the local golf course but also set precedent for desegregation of other public facilities In Fair Ways Robert J Robertson chronicles three parallel stories that converged in this important case He tells the story of the plaintiffs avid golfers who had learned the game while working as caddies and waiters of their young lawyers recent graduates from Howard University law school and of the Republican judge just appointed to the bench by President Eisenhower Using public case papers public records newspapers and oral histories Robertson has recreated the scene in Beaumont on the eve of desegregation Fair Ways gives a vivid picture of racial segregation and the forces that brought about its end

Education for Sustainable Development Brian Chalkley, Martin Haigh, David Higgitt, 2013-09-13 In 2005 The United Nations launched its Decade of Education for Sustainable Development which recognises that education including Higher Education is the key to the change in social attitudes that will be needed to protect the welfare of future generations This involves helping learners to live as though the future matters and to achieve ecoliteracy This includes the understanding that personal lifestyle decisions may have consequences ranging from climate change through loss of biodiversity to pollution and resource depletion that may permit environmental degradation on a planetary scale It also involves helping them to develop the skills needed to cope with such challenges This international collection of research papers and position statements from special issues of the Journal of Geography in Higher Education and Applied Environmental Education and Communication written by many of the leading practitioners in the field aims to provide resources and practical guidance for all seeking to promote and engage in education for a sustainable future Rabindranath Tagore encouraged each learner to make their actions demonstrate a harmonious union between education and environment David Orr argued that the world needs people who live well in their places to make the world both habitable and humane and that the main challenge for education is to help learners make their minds fit for life on Earth This book tries to chart a practical route towards these objectives This book was previously published as special issues of the Journal of Geography in Higher Education and Applied Environmental Education and Communication
