The Principal as Professional Development Leader Phyllis H. Lindstrom, Marsha Speck, 2004-02-20 At last we have a book that realistically empathically and interestingly describes leadership and the professional development work that needs to accompany it for principals. It is all here: readings, web sites, theory, practice, helpful forms to use, vignettes of principals. Lindstrom and Speck are both insiders and outsiders, teaching us in the best of ways how to both think about and act on our new knowledge. Ann Lieberman, Senior Scholar, Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. This is the book to read. I will recommend it to my colleagues the minute it is off of the press. The authors should be very proud of their work and contribution to a pivotal need in the field. Bottom line: It will help improve what we do for children, our ultimate purpose. Becky J. Cooke, Principal, Evergreen Elementary School, Spokane, WA. Raise student achievement by developing leadership, teamwork skills, and knowledge in teachers. Professional Development School on Professional Development in the Partner School District Doris Grove,2016
ABSTRACTOver the last several decades those engaged in enhancing educational quality have recognized the increasing importance of the role of professional development in enhancing educator performance and student learning During that same time period professional development school partnerships between school districts and institutions of higher learning have been seen as a vehicle for transforming or renewing both basic and higher education It is reasonable to expect that the establishment of a professional development school partnership would exert a significant impact on the professional development program of the district However this may not be the case In fact Levine 1997 argued school districts with some important exceptions continue to ignore the potential impact that professional development schools can have in terms of professional development recruitment and new teacher induction p 6 The purpose of this study was to address empirically the question of the impact of a PDS partnership on a districts professional development program The central research question framing this study was What has been the impact of an elementary professional development school partnership on the professional development program of the school district at the elementary level In order to answer this central research question the following sub questions guided the study 1 As individuals in a variety of roles and contexts perceive it has the elementary professional development program in the school district changed as a result of the PDS partnership 2 If changes in professional development have occurred at the elementary level in what areas have the changes occurred a Assumptions underlying professional development b Goals for professional development c Delivery of professional development d Role of the teacher in professional development e Outcomes of professional development 3 What factors explain the changes that have occurred The study employed a qualitative case study approach In depth interviews using an interview protocol adapted from Seidman were conducted with 25 participants from three distinct categories 1 central office administrators including curriculum coordinators 2 principals and 3 teachers using Seidmans interview protocol Data were analyzed using the constant comparative method Glasser Strauss 1967 As revealed from the data collected during this study all of the participant groups with the exception of the low involvement teacher participants perceived that the professional development school partnership offered and supported multiple opportunities for professional development including enhanced teacher leadership possibilities generating a culture of inquiry and empowerment through teacher generated and teacher led professional development The findings of the study indicate multiple opportunities for future research studies in regards to professional development school university partnerships and teacher leadership and principal leadership in a PDS partnership
