Heartland TV Victoria E. Johnson, 2008 Winner of the 2009 Society for Cinema and Media Studies Katherine Singer Kovacs Book Award The Midwest of popular imagination is a Heartland characterized by traditional cultural values and mass market dispositions Whether cast positively as authentic pastoral populist hardworking and all American or negatively as backward narrow minded unsophisticated conservative and out of touch the myth of the Heartland endures Heartland TV examines the centrality of this myth to television's promotion and development programming and marketing appeals and public debates over the medium's and its audience's cultural worth Victoria E Johnson investigates how the square image of the heartland has been ritually recuperated on prime time television from The Lawrence Welk Show in the 1950s to documentary specials in the 1960s to The Mary Tyler Moore Show in the 1970s to Ellen in the 1990s She also examines news specials on the Oklahoma City bombing to reveal how that city has been inscribed as the epitome of a timeless pastoral heartland and concludes with an analysis of network branding practices and appeals to an imagined red state audience Johnson argues that non white queer and urban culture is consistently erased from depictions of the Midwest in order to reinforce its reassuring image as white and straight Through analyses of policy industry discourse and case studies of specific shows Heartland TV exposes the cultural function of the Midwest as a site of national transference and disavowal with regard to race sexuality and citizenship ideals
