Studies of the city and of women's experiences of the city have focused primarily on modern times especially as modernism was defined in large part by urban life. Italy however has a long history of urban centered culture and women have been a vocal part of that culture since the Renaissance. This volume therefore looks at the art and literature of both earlier and more modern periods to investigate the meanings of the city for Italian women, the intensely gendered meanings for both sexes of those city spaces that excluded women and the conditions that permitted a limited permeability of gendered boundaries. Two aspects to the combination of women and city are salient to these investigations. One involves their metaphorical relationship. Urbs citta ville the words for city tend to be grammatically feminine and a long tradition of representation associates the city with a woman. Women especially writers could exploit, modify or resist the prevailing uses of such metaphors. The second aspect of connection involves social realities. What was or is the relation of the female city with the real women who inhabit it? What kind of site has it provided for women seeking a satisfying life for themselves? How has art and literature by men and by women represented the relationship of female persons or characters to urban spaces?
