was the case ten to twenty years ago and these patients are also more prone to develop an infection Two questions are particularly relevant in this context 1 Under what conditions do hospital infections occur Defects of host defence mechanisms are of great importance in this respect Such defects can be due to the disease or to the treatment given to the patient 2 Which of the host defence mechanisms can be affected by a stay in the hospital Among the factors involved in the host defence against infections Table I a number are especially important in this respect For instance venepuncture indwelling catheters and surgery all cause a breach in the surface structures Anaesthesia causes temporary impairment of mechanical factors Vascularization may be defective especially in the aged and patients with diabetes mellitus and this may complicate the healing of wounds in the skin and mucous membranes after surgery

Hospital Infection: From Miasmas to MRSA Graham A. J. Ayliffe, Mary P. English, 2003-06-05

This is an absorbing account of the continuing battle to control hospital infections from the earliest days of hospital care when bad air or miasma was thought to be the cause to the present day and the emergence of antibiotic resistant superbugs such as

MRSA and necrotizing fasciitis It succeeds on many levels as a fascinating social history of hospital care from mediaeval times when patients endured verminous conditions to the present day as a survey of the rise fall and emergence of new nosocomial infections and as a chronological account of the emergence of medical microbiology and infection control The pivotal roles of key personalities such as Joseph Lister Florence Nightingale Louis Pasteur and Robert Koch are highlighted and the history of this subject illuminates not only why hospitals and infections have had such an intimate and long relationship but one that seems destined to continue well into the future
