Cosmopolitanism and Tourism Robert Shepherd, 2017-12-12 Within tourism studies the cosmopolitan potentials of tourism have often been situated within a broader conversation about globalization an approach that implies that cosmopolitanism is a predictable by product of globalization and becoming more cosmopolitan should be the goal of travel And yet a fundamental value of a cosmopolitan outlook namely to not only to be at home in the world but also to experience the world in an authentic sense depends on the culturally embedded parochial and particular world views which it rejects In Cosmopolitanism and Tourism Rethinking Theory and Practice contributors take this as a starting point What does a worldly consciousness mean to people situated in different cultural landscapes and to what extent might these intersect with cosmopolitan values How is cosmopolitanism marketed in tourism and tourist related industries such as service learning and study abroad And finally what roles do social and economic class educational background gender and other factors have in cosmopolitan claims The contributors to this edited collection address these questions in a series of case studies that range from Guatemala Bolivia and Ireland to China India and Dubai For more information check out A Conversation with Robert Shepherd author of Cosmopolitanism and Tourism Rethinking Theory and

Feasts Michael Dietler, Brian Hayden, 2010-04-30 In this collection of fifteen essays archaeologists and ethnographers explore the material record of food and its consumption as social practice The Lumad and Moro of Mindanao B. R. RODIL, 1993-01-01 There are two main indigenous groups in the south of the Philippines the Lumad and the Moro Together the Lumad who have retained their traditional beliefs and the Islamized Moro communities regard themselves as the original inhabitants of the greater part of the island of Mindanao and the Sulu Archipelago Both these peoples have shown themselves to be enduring in the face of Spanish and US colonization and the policies of the predominantly Christian Philippine national government The Philippines is a country with a low per capita income and a growing and land hungry population In order to solve some of these problems including a worsening energy crisis the government is attempting to exploit Mindanao's abundant natural resources but this directly conflicts with the interests of the Lumad and Moro The situation is inextricably linked with the fact that since 1972 the government has been engaged in a war of attrition with the Moro National Liberation Front MNLF who have been fighting for political control within Mindanao THE LUMAD AND MORO OF MINDANAO outlines the origins of these two peoples historical issues of land ownership and settlement programmes the effect of big business and development the campaigning strategies of the Lumad and the Moro's journey to self determination Written by Professor B R Rodil a member of the Tiruray Lumad community this is a timely and essential exploration of the situation of these two indigenous groups who have been increasingly marginalized by the central government of the Philippines Please note that the terminology in the fields of minority rights and indigenous peoples rights has changed over time MRG strives to reflect these changes as well as respect the right to self identification on the part of minorities and indigenous peoples At the same time after over 50 years work we know that our archive is of considerable interest to activists and researchers Therefore we make available as much of our back catalogue as possible while being aware that the language used may not reflect current thinking on these issues Ethnicity in Asia Colin Mackerras, 2003-09-02 A comparative introduction to ethnicity in East and Southeast Asia since 1945 Each chapter covers a particular country looking at core issues such as ethnic minorities and groups population language culture and traditional religion
