Many Pathways To Literacy Young Children Learning With Siblings Grandparents Peers And Communities:

Many Pathways to Literacy Eve Gregory, Susi Long, Dinah Volk, 2004 Based on extensive research that proves that children actively make sense of literacy outside the official schooling and parental tuition they receive this book examines how young children take literacy learning into their own hands Second Language Acquisition and the Younger Learner Jenefer Philp, Rhonda Oliver, Alison Mackey, 2008 This new volume of work highlights the distinctiveness of child SLA through a collection of different types of empirical research specific to younger learners Characteristics of children's cognitive emotional and social development distinguish their experiences from those of adult L2 learners creating intriguing issues for SLA research and also raising important practical questions regarding effective pedagogical techniques for learners of different ages While child SLA is often typically thought of as simple and often enjoyable and universally effortless in other words as children's play the complex portraits of young second language learners which emerge in the 16 papers collected in this book invite the reader to reconsider the reality for many younger learners Chapters by internationally renowned authors together with reports by emerging researchers describe second and foreign language learning by children ranging from pre schoolers to young adolescents in home and school contexts with caregivers peers and teachers as interlocutors

Anderson, Maureen Kendrick, Theresa Rogers, Suzanne Smythe, 2005-05-06 This unique global perspective on multiple literacies crosses traditional boundaries between the study of family community and school literacies It calls attention to the ideological nature of literacy education across a broad range of literacy context Multilingual Digital Storytelling Jim

Anderson, Vicky Macleroy, 2016-03-02 Classrooms are increasingly multicultural in their social composition and students are increasingly connected through digital media to local and global networks. However, pedagogy has failed to take full advantage of the opportunities these resources represent. Multilingual Digital Storytelling draws attention to the interfaces between learner engagement, creativity and critical digital literacy as well as addressing the multilingual within the multiliteracies framework. Addressing a significant gap in the field of multiliteracies by focusing on multilingualism, this book explores new digital spaces for language learning and methods of extending understandings of youth literacy in an increasingly interconnected world. Drawing on innovative and multi-site research projects based in mainstream and community schools in London and overseas, this book discusses how young people become engaged creatively and critically with literacy by demonstrating how digital storytelling can be used as a tool for language development. The book begins by considering linguistic, cultural, cognitive and social dimensions of language learning from a theoretical perspective, whilst the second part focuses on practical case studies that reflect and illustrate these theoretical principles. Offering a powerful new perspective on multiliteracies pedagogy, Multilingual Digital Storytelling will appeal to researchers and academics in the fields of education, applied linguistics, sociology and youth and community studies. It will also be an invaluable resource for teachers, teacher educators, curriculum planners and policymakers.

Early Childhood Education in the United States Dinah Volk, Liz Brooker, Pamela Oberhuemer, Rod Parker-Rees, 2020-04-24 Early Childhood Education in the United States is rife with contradictions, critique and innovation. It is a time when a status quo characterized by systemic historic discrimination, teacher de-professionalization, teaching to the test and attacks on funding is challenged by new technologies, new literacies and transformative and critical perspectives and practices that defy assumptions and biases to create cutting-edge, diverse instantiations of Early Childhood Education for children, families and teachers. This volume, based on a special issue of the Early Years journal written in 2016 before the new administration announced its policies, aims to generate conversations about developments in Early Childhood Education situated within classist, racist, linguisticist and neoliberal contexts and to analyze critically where we are, where we might go and what we might do. It is also an opportunity to share counter-narratives to the dominant narratives promulgated by many convinced that narrow, destructive norms of appropriate practice, standards and accountability as well as the curtailed achievement of children of Color, those from low-income communities and emergent bilinguals are common sense. These counter-narratives, some about transformational projects that have generated innovative perspectives and practices and some detailing critical analyses and projects that go beyond to explore issues of power, contest education that disprivileges some children and families while advocating education that is child and family-centered, culturally relevant and sustaining, equitable and democratic. Our hope is that this work creates a space of dialogue and human action needed even more urgently today. This book was originally published as a special issue of the Early Years journal.

Linking Families, Learning, and Schooling Bobbie Kabuto, Prisca Martens, 2014-01-21 Parents who are also educational researchers have access to a domain that is highly complex and not always available to other scholars. In this book, parent researchers provide theoretical and practical insights into children's learning in the home and at school. Readers are given a window into learning in the home context and how all family members organize or engage in that learning. Working on two levels, the book develops scholarly discussions about learning in the home: how is it organized, who the participants are, and what children are learning, and it illustrates the impacts that outside institutions, in particular schools, have on families. It is unique in showcasing parent research as a type of research paradigm with particular aspects and challenges. Both teachers and researchers can learn from these studies as they show the impact that schooling has on families and how institutional discourses and beliefs can both positively and
