Animal Cognition Thomas R. Zentall,2013-12-02 Prepared as a tribute to Donald A Riley the essays that appear here are representative of a research area that has loosely been classified as animal cognition a categorization that reflects a functionalist philosophy that was prevalent in Riley s laboratory and that many of his students absorbed According to this philosophy it is acceptable to hypothesize that an animal might engage in complex processing of information as long as one can operationalize evidence for such a process and the hypothesis can be presented in the context of testable predictions that can differentiate it from other mechanisms The contributions to this volume represent the three most important areas of research in animal cognition stimulus representation memory processes and perceptual processes although current research has considerably blurred these distinctions The Forum Loretta Sutton Metcalf,Walter Hines Page,Joseph Mayer

Information and Analysis NCOIA In 1987 the U S National Science Foundation issued a solicitation for proposals to establish the NCGIA and one element of that solicitation was a call for research on a fundamental theory of spatial relations We felt that such a fundamental theory could be searched for in mathematics geometry topology or in cognitive science but that a simultaneous search in these two seemingly disparate research areas might produce novel results Thus as part of the NCGIA proposal from a consortium consisting of the University of California at Santa Barbara the State University of New York at Buffalo and the University of Maine we proposed that the second major Research Initiative two year multidisciplinary research project of the NCOIA would address these issues and would be called Languages of Spatial Relations The grant to establish the NCOIA was awarded to our consortium late in 1988 Matthew for Everyone, Part 1 N.
