Mapping A Tradition Francophone Womens Writing From Guadeloupe Mhra Texts Dibertations:

Mapping a Tradition Sam Haigh, 2000 In recent years critical interest in francophone literature has become increasingly pronounced In the case of the French Caribbean the work of several writers Aime Cesaire Frantz Fanon Edouard Glissant and Patrick Chamoiseau for example has gained international recognition and has formed a vital part of more general debates on history culture language and identity in the post colonial world The majority of such writers however have been male and perhaps recalling the preference that France has always shown for the island have come in large part from Martinique Mapping a Tradition Francophone Women s Writing from Guadeloupe aims to explore a different side of francophone Caribbean writing through the examination of selected novels by Jacqueline Manicom Michele Lacrosil Maryse Conde Simone Schwarz Bart and Dany Bebel Gisler Placing the work of these writers in the context of that of their better known male counterparts this study argues that it has provided an important mode of intervention in and disruption of a literary tradition which has failed to address questions of sexual difference and has often excluded issues relating to French Caribbean women At the same time this study suggests that Guadeloupean women s writing of the last thirty years may be seen to constitute a tradition in itself replete with its own influences and inheritances At once within and outside the dominant tradition women s writing from Guadeloupe and Martinique has come to occupy a position at the forefront of contemporary efforts to expand and redefine a still burgeoning corpus of literary and theoretical work

Mapping a Tradition Samantha Haigh, 1995

Two Major Francophone Women Writers, Assia Djébar and Leïla Sebbar Rafika Merini, 2001 One of the most widely acknowledged attributes of Francophone literature in general is that it brings wideranging socio political issues to bear on literary theory worldviews and historical events This study brings to light the resulting implications of this fact on the universal themes of femininity underlying the originating unveiling and demystifying that occur in the works of two of the best known and most highly accomplished women writers of North African origin Assia Djébar and Leïla Sebbar This study also concerns itself with these writers texts and intertexts in their relationship with cultural manifestations and with language
