legislators and physicians who populated those institutions reinforced women's second class social status and restricted their ability to make their own choices about reproductive health care In More Than Medicine Jennifer Nelson reveals how feminists of the 60s and 70s applied the lessons of the new left and civil rights movements to generate a women's health movement The new movement shifted from the struggle to revolutionize health care to the focus of ending sex discrimination and gender stereotypes perpetuated in mainstream medical contexts Moving from the campaign for legal abortion to the creation of community clinics and feminist health centers Nelson illustrates how these activists revolutionized health care by associating it with the changing social landscape in which women had power to control their own life choices More Than Medicine poignantly reveals how social justice activists in the United States gradually transformed the meaning of health care pairing traditional notions of medicine with less conventional ideas of healthy social and political environments

Integrative Medicine Kerryn Phelps, Craig Hassed, 2012-10-31 Integrative Medicine General Practice the Integrative Approach Series This chapter introduces the concept of integrative medicine and the healthcare revolution The emergence of evidence based medicine and more recently evidence based complementary medicine is challenging many previously held notions of best practice As evidence emerges many Western medical therapies are being confirmed as correct or challenged as ineffective or harmful Similarly many complementary therapies are being confirmed as correct while others are being found ineffective or harmful Such is the inevitable evolution of healthcare It is also important that evidence based healthcare at very level be considered a work in progress whether it is in the discovery of the genetic basis of disease the development of previously untested technology or the clinical application of a treatment The nature of scientific research is such that new information becomes available at a great rate and that knowledge often changes the status quo It is in the GP s consulting room that patients ideally have the opportunity to explore what is likely to be the best option for their healthcare We see the gamut of health concerns from a person wanting a check up and interested in doing more to maintain good health to a patient who is symptomatic and wanting a diagnosis and treatment or a patient with an established diagnosis who is looking for either a cure or a way of optimising their wellbeing as they live with their illness
