Myths of the Odyssey in Art and Literature Jane Ellen Harrison, 1882 Myths of the Odyssey in Art and Literature
Jane Ellen Harrison, 2025-07-09 Reprint of the original first published in 1882 The Antigonos publishing house specialises in the publication of reprints of historical books We make sure that these works are made available to the public in good condition in order to preserve their cultural heritage Myths of the Odyssey in Art and Literature Jane E. Harrison, 2022-08-31 A fascinating look at how the poetry of Homer in the Odyssey was rendered and interpreted down the ages by the artists painters sculptors jewellers poets and writers who followed soon thereafter in Ancient Greece and Rome By two voices the tales of Homer have been told us to one of these we too often neglect to listen Because the myths of Homer himself are told in words that are matchless is it well that the story which art has left us should remain unread The vase painter and the gem engraver are indeed humbler artists than the great epic poet sometimes they are mere craftsmen and their work little beyond the rudest symbolic word painting but they are Greeks and they may help us to understand somewhat better the spirit of their mighty kinsman We who are so far removed by time by place by every condition of modern life must refuse no aid whereby we may seek to draw the nearer our eyes must learn to see as well as our ears to hearken We read enough of the writings of scholiast and grammarian who have striven in all ages to elucidate the text of Homer Thereby we acquire it is true much verbal intelligence of our poet but perhaps attain to but little additional sympathy There is another commentary which by all but professed archaeologists remains for the most part unknown the commentary of Art of Mythography Preface Myths of the Odyssey in Art and Literature (Classic Reprint) J. E. Harrison, 2017-12-15 Excerpt from Myths of the Odyssey in Art and Literature F OR English readers my book is in intention some what novel it may be well therefore at the outset clearly to define its purport By two voices the tales of Homer have been told us to one of these we too often neglect to listen Because the myths of Homer himself are told in words that are matchless is it well that the story which art has left us should remain unread The vase painter and the gem engraver are indeed humbler artists than the great epic poet sometimes they are mere craftsmen and their work little beyond the rudest symbolic word painting but they are Greeks and they may help us to understand some what better the spirit of their mighty kinsman We who are so far removed by time by place by every condition of modern life must refuse no aid whereby we may seek to draw the nearer our eyes must learn to see as well as our ears to hearken We read enough of the writings of scholiast and grammarian who have striven in all ages to elucidate the text of Homer Thereby we acquire it is true About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any
