Nab 1 Portrait Of A Politician:

NAB 1: Portrait of a Politician Gerald Nabarro, 1969 The NUM and British Politics Andrew Taylor, 2017-03-02 From its formation in 1944 the National Union of Mineworkers NUM was one of the most powerful and important players on the British political and industrial stage Whilst the nation relied upon coal for its electricity production domestic heating and railway transportation the miners and their unions would always play a central role in national politics with the ability to cause massive disruption to the nation should they decide to strike as they did in 1972 and 1974 However as the country began to move towards other forms of energy such as oil and gas the power of the mineworkers correspondingly decreased leaving the once mighty union to come to terms with a very different world by the early eighties The NUM and British Politics makes use of union material and party and government archives as well as oral testimony much of it highly confidential to present the first overall account of the evolving nature of the tripartite relationship between the miners the NUM and the state

A Bibliography of British History, 1914-1989 Keith Robbins, American Historical Association, Royal Historical Society (Great Britain), 1996 Containing over 25 000 entries this unique volume will be absolutely indispensable for all those with an interest in Britain in the twentieth century Accessibly arranged by theme with helpful introductions to each chapter a huge range of topics is covered There is a comprehensive index

Electing Our Masters Jon Lawrence, 2009-03-26 In this engagingly written history of electioneering in Britain from the eighteenth century to the present Jon Lawrence explores the changing relationship between politicians and public Throughout this period he argues British politics has been characterized by bruising public rituals intended to bestow legitimacy on politicians by obliging them to face an often irreverent public on broadly equal terms Face to face interaction was central both to the disorderly civic rituals of eighteenth century politics and to the Victorian and Edwardian election meeting Perhaps surprisingly it also survived in pretty rude health between the wars despite the emergence of the new mass communication media of radio and cinema But the same cannot be said of the post war era and the rise of television Today most politicians are content merely to offer the semblance of meaningful engagement walkabouts canvassing and meetings are all designed to ensure that most senior politicians come into contact only with the smiling faces of that dwindling band the party faithful Lloyd George and Churchill might have relished the rough and tumble of a tumultuous public meeting but their modern counterparts tend to be more risk averse and not without reason given that the cameras are always present to capture their mishaps But this is not another nostalgic lament for a lost golden age On the contrary Electing Our Masters argues that politicians frequently still crave the kudos to be derived from bruising encounters with an irreverent public hence Tony Blair's so called masochism strategy in the 2005 election campaign with its succession of gruelling sessions before live studio audiences As Lawrence points out the vital question for today is can we persuade our broadcasters that such encounters must form a staple of modern mediated politics
