A. Halikowski Smith, 2011-05-25 The Indian Ocean World was an idea borne out by researchers in economic history and trade in the 1980s in response to the compartmentalization of specific area studies within the wider rubric of Asian civilisations and culture Professor Kirti N Chaudhuri s books Trading World of Asia and the English East India Company 1978 and then Trade and Civilization in the Indian Ocean 1985 figured amongst the forefront of this new movement in historical thinking undertaking detailed historical analysis first of the English East India Company and then a comparative cultural history of Asian material life and civilisation Today historians continue to hold on to the idea of an Indian Ocean world although studies now follow a number of different threads from themes like linguistics and creolization to the seeds of national consciousness By presenting a number of studies here gathered into the themes of Intermixing The World of Trade and Colonial Paths it is hoped we can render tribute to one of the outstanding historians in this field and reflect the plenitude of current research in this subject area

Narrative of a Mission to Bokhara, in the Years 1843-45 Joseph Wolff, 1845 Iran and The West Cyrus Ghani, 2013-09-05 First Published in 1987 this volume offers a bibliography of biographies autobiographies and books on contemporary politics by prominent 20th century figures on the topic of Iran Narrative of a Mission to Bokhara, in the Years 1843-1845, to Ascertain the Fate of Colonel Stoddart and Captain Conolly; Volume 1 Joseph Wolff, 2023-07-18 Joseph Wolff was a missionary and explorer who set out on a perilous journey to Bokhara to try to save two British officers who had been captured and executed by the Emir of Bukhara In this book he provides a fascinating account of his journey including encounters with bandits slave markets and the Emir himself This gripping tale is an important piece of history and a great read for anyone interested in travel and adventure This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it This work is in the public domain in the United States of America and possibly other nations Within the United States you may freely copy and distribute this work as

Johnson,2021-01-15 Zaynab first published in 1913 is widely cited as the first Arabic novel yet the previous eight decades saw hundreds of novels translated into Arabic from English and French This vast literary corpus influenced generations of Arab writers but has until now been considered a curious footnote in the genre s history Incorporating these works into the history of the Arabic novel Stranger Fictions offers a transformative new account of modern Arabic literature world literature and the novel Rebecca C Johnson rewrites the history of the global circulation of the novel by moving Arabic literature from the margins of comparative literature to its center Considering the wide range of nineteenth and early twentieth century translation practices including bad translation mistranslation and pseudotranslation Johnson argues that Arabic translators did far more than copy European works they authored new versions of them producing sophisticated theorizations of the genre These translations and the reading practices they precipitated form the conceptual and practical foundations of Arab literary modernity necessitating an overhaul of our notions of translation cultural exchange and the global Examining nearly a century of translations published in Beirut Cairo Malta Paris London and New York from Qat R binun Kur z The story of Robinson Crusoe in 1835 to pastiched crime stories in early twentieth century Egyptian magazines Johnson shows how translators theorized the Arab world not as Europe's periphery but as an alternative center in a globalized network Stranger Fictions affirms the central place of mis translation in both the history of the novel in Arabic and the novel as a transnational form itself

Asiatic Russia Tomohiko Uyama, 2012-03-12 Although the Russian Empire has traditionally been viewed as a European borderland most of its territory was actually situated in Asia Imperial power was huge but often suffered from a lack of enough information and resources to rule its culturally diverse subjects and asymmetric relations between state and society combined with flexible strategies of local actors sometimes produced unexpected results In Asiatic Russia an international team of scholars explores the interactions between power and people in Central Asia Siberia the Volga Urals and the Caucasus from the 18th to the early 20th centuries drawing on a wealth of Russian archival materials and Turkic Persian and Tibetan sources The variety of topics discussed in the book includes the Russian idea of a civilizing mission the system of governor generalships imperial geography and demography roles of Muslim and Buddhist networks in imperial rule and foreign policy social change in the Russian Protectorate of Bukhara Muslim reformist and national movements The book is essential reading for students and scholars of Russian Central Eurasian and comparative imperial history as well as imperial and colonial studies and nationalism studies It may also provide some hints for understanding today's world where empire has again become a key word in international and domestic power relations

Judaising Movements Tudor Parfitt, Emanuela Semi, 2013-12-16 The history of Judaising movements has been largely ignored by historians of religion This volume analyzes the interplay between colonialism a Judaism not traditionally viewed as proselytising but which at certain points was struggling to heed the Prophets and become a light unto the Gentiles and the attraction for many different peoples of the rooted historicity of Judaism and by the symbolic appropriation of Jewish suffering This book will look at the role of colonialism in the development of Judaising movements throughout the world including New Zealand Japan India Burma and Africa Particular attention will be paid to the Lemba tribe of Southern Africa A remarkable parallel movement in 1930s Southern Italy will also be dealt with The history of the converts of San Nicandro is seen in the context of currents of Jewish universalism messianism and Zionism Gender issues are also discussed here as the converted women assumed powers they had not hitherto enjoyed
