Rise Of The French Novel:

The Rise of the French Novel Martin Turnell, 1978 Martin Turnell's The Rise of the French Novel is a successor to his highly praised earlier books The Novel in France 1951 and The Art of French Fiction 1959 His aim now however is somewhat different as can be seen from the title It is well known that the reputations of many writers novelists especially diminish for a period following their deaths Although in the eighteenth century Marivaux Crillon and Rousseau all enjoyed a great deal of popularity during their lifetimes it is only recently that they have been subject to truly searching studies Yet they remain little read in English speaking countries Turnell emphasizes that in spite of the hostility of French critics and the fact that the novel did not reach its supremacy even in France until the nineteenth century the beginning of its great rise was indeed with such writers as these Their strong influence led such nineteenth century novelists as Stendhal and Flaubert to all kinds of changes related to style the enormous increase in the range of subject matter and the marked development of language Flaubert is the most striking example It was pointed out some time ago by Eisenstein that Madame Bovary anticipates cinematic technique One of Turnell's most interesting chapters explores the connections between the novel and film in general and Madame Bovary in particular In our own time two of the most popular French novelists in both the United States and England are Alain Fournier and Radiguet They are given enthusiastic appreciations in Turnell's thoughtful book

The Other Rise of the Novel in Eighteenth-Century French Fiction Olivier Delers, 2015-09-01 The rise of the novel paradigm and the underlying homology between the rise of a bourgeois middle class and the coming of age of a new literary genre continues to influence the way we analyze economic discourse in the eighteenth century French novel Characters are often seen as portraying bourgeois values even when historiographical evidence points to the virtual absence of a self-conscious and coherent bourgeoisie in France in the early modern period Likewise the fact that the nobility was a dynamic and diverse group whose members had learned to think in individualistic and meritocratic terms as a result of courtly politics is often ignored The Other Rise of the Novel calls for a radical revision of how realism the language of self-interest and commercial exchanges and idealized noble values interact in the early modern novel It focuses on two novels from the seventeenth century Furetière's Roman bourgeois and Lafayette's Princesse de Clèves and four novels from the eighteenth century Prévost's Manon Lescaut Graffigny's Lettres d'une Pruvienne Rousseau's La Nouvelle Héloïse and Sade's Les infortunes de la vertu It argues that eighteenth century French fiction does not reflect material culture mimetically and that character action is best analyzed by focusing on the social and discursive exchanges staged by the text rather than by trying to create parallels between specific behavior and actual historical changes The novel produces its own reality by transforming characters and their stories into alternative social models different articulations of how individuals should define their economic relations to others The representation of interpersonal relations often highlights personal conceptions of private interest that cannot be easily reconciled with the traditional narrative of a transition towards economic modernity Realism then is not only about verisimilar storytelling and psychological depth it is an epistemological questioning about the type of access to reality that a particular genre can give its readers

Dangerous Truths and Criminal Passions Thomas DiPiero, 1992-07-01 This book challenges several traditional assumptions about the development of the French novel notably that the novel is a bourgeois art form that rose and flourished along with the rise of the bourgeoisie and that the novels of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries were inevitable stepping stones on the road to the apotheosis of realism realized in the novels of Balzac Flaubert and Zola Instead the author argues that the early French novel articulated the French aristocracy's claims to natural ascendancy against an encroaching middle class But like any other literary form the novel produces and is a product of ideology and it reveals the contradictions lying beneath the surface of an apparently seamless social structure After the death of Louis XIV and the resulting social and political redefinition of the aristocracy the ideological rifts in the novel's form enabled it to shift its class affiliations with the changing times French cultural life was increasingly tinged with values determined by new configurations in the control and transmission of property including new constraints on women's sexual behavior Fiction that claimed for itself a rightful place in the real world began to appear As it had during the seventeenth century fiction continued to negotiate complex social contradictions and label as malevolent any person or group that seemed to threaten social order notably the immoderate woman who flouted traditional conceptions of virtue and threatened to read the social fabric This new account of the rise of the French novel is enriched throughout by close readings of both well known and obscure novels including d'Urfé's L'Astre e Gomberville's Polexandre Furetière's Le Roman bourgeois Prevost's Manon Lescaut Diderot's La Religieuse and Sade's Justine

The Evolution of the French Novel, 1641-1782 Elaine Showalter, 2016-04-19 In France between 1641 and 1782 the romance developed into the novel Mr Showalter's intensive study of the novel particularly during the critical period 1700-1720 shows that an important movement toward nineteenth century realism was taking place To trace this development the author has selected five phenomena time space names money and the narrator and follows their treatment throughout the period to show why romance tended toward the novel To show the working out of these ideas there is a detailed analysis of one novel Robert Challe s Les Illustres Francoises which can be precisely located in the chain of literary influence Its central theme of the individual in conflict with society was well suited to the forms available to the eighteenth century novelist Consequently it appears repeatedly in important novels of the period showing that the evolutionary process worked to some degree even on subject matter Originally published in 1972 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

Gender and Voice in the French Novel, 1730-1782 Aurora Wolfgang, 2017-03-02 Analyzing four best selling novels by both women and men written in the feminine voice this book traces how the creation of women centered salons and the emergence of a feminine poetic style engendered a new type of literature in eighteenth century France The author argues that writing in a female voice allowed writers of both sexes to break with classical notions of literature and style so that they could create a modern sensibility that appealed to a larger reading public and gave them scope to innovate with style and form Wolfgang brings to light how the female voice in literature came to embody the language of sociability but also allowed writers to explore the domain of inter subjectivity while creating new bonds between writers and the reading public Through examination of Marivaux s La Vie de Marianne Graffigny s Lettres d une Pruvienne Riccoboni s Lettres de Mistriss Fanni Butler and Laclos s Les Liaisons dangereuses she shows that in France this modern feminine sensibility turned the least prestigious of literary genres the novel into the most compelling and innovative literary form of the eighteenth century Emphasizing how the narratives analyzed here refashioned the French literary world through their linguistic innovation and expression of new forms of subjectivity this study claims an important role for feminine voice narratives in shaping the field of eighteenth century literature
