Fastest lizard

Not only are they one of the most popular reptiles kept as pets, but bearded dragons are also the fastest lizards on Earth. They naturally occur in most of Southern Australia and are also adept climbers. The fastest recorded speed for a bearded dragon is 40 km/h, closely followed by the green iguana at 35 km/h.

Fastest snake

There's not a lot you can say about the black mamba other than "run away". With an average length of between 7 and 10 feet, the black mamba is one of the longest venomous snakes in the world. Reaching speeds of 23 km/h, you wouldn't have much chance of outrunning one. Perhaps the best advice to anybody near an angry black mamba is to be somewhere else.

Fastest turtle

Even though they usually swim about at speeds of around 8 km/h, the leatherback turtle can reach speeds of up to 35 km/h in the water. That makes them easily the fastest turtle in the world and very nearly the fastest reptile.

Smallest reptile

Only discovered in 2021, the Brookesia nana (or nano-chameleon) is just under 22mm long from its nose to the end of its tail. That's equivalent to a sunflower seed. Two of the species were discovered in Madagascar.

"Trading Magic for Fact," Fact for Magic Marc Colavincenzo,2021-10-18 This study brings together three major areas of interest history postmodern fiction and myth Whereas neither history and postmodern fiction nor history and myth are strangers to one another postmodernism and myth are odd bedfellows For many critics postmodern thought with its resistance to metanarratives stands in direct and deliberate contrast to myth with its apparent tendency to explain the world by means of neat complete narratives There is a strain of postmodern Canadian historical fiction in which myth actually forms a complement not only to postmodernism s suspicion of master narratives but also to its privileging of those marginal and at times ignored areas of history The fourteen works of Canadian fiction considered demonstrate a doubled impulse which at first glance seems contradictory On the one hand they go about demythologizing in the Barthesian sense various elements of historical discourse exposing its authority as not simply a natural given but as a construct This includes the fact that the view of history portrayed in the fiction has been either underrepresented or suppressed by official historiography On the other hand the history is then re mythologized in that it becomes part of a pre existing myth its mythic elements are foregrounded myth and magic are woven into the narrative or it is portrayed as extraordinary in some way The result is an empowering of these histories for the future they are made larger than life and unforgettable The National Advocate
