Gottlieb,2014-08-27 In an effort to address the problems confronting the American education system the Obama administration has issued structural and systematic reforms such as Race to the Top These initiatives introduce new statistics and accountability systems to gauge what constitutes good teaching both from an administrative standpoint and the perspective of teacher training programs This volume offers a direct critique of this approach concluding that it does not respond adequately to the issues of education reform but rather raises new problems and actively stymies progress The author argues that at the heart of the confusion lies a misguided and rationalistic view of teaching and learning He draws on the philosophical strategies of Ludwig Wittgenstein to break down the guiding assumptions of Race to the Top allowing both the positive and the negative aspects of the policies to be heard The author then proposes a different view of teaching and learning which considers how to effectively address the problems Race to the Top seeks to confront

Self Perception Richard Riding, Stephen Rayner, 2001-08-30 The second book in a new series Self Perception brings together contemporary perspectives on individual differences in psychology Drawing upon an international field of established and new researchers the series presents both theoretical and applied work looking at individual difference in human performance The reappraisal of self perception is considered as part of the development of new thinking in the theory of self reference This includes models of self from the United States and the United Kingdom The book goes on to explore recent research from around the globe Not only are studies from Australia Norway and the United States examined but research from Greece and Kuwait is also explored Varied topics are covered including the effects of gender self esteem and pupil self perception in the academic context Set within the framework of a conceptual synthesis of the research the book offers a contemporary review of current thinking in the field The contributors provide recent relevant and alternative perspectives for psychologists and applied scientists
