Paintings and Sculptures: Where Do We Look First? Magali Seille,Zoi Kapoula,2023-05-16 The book presents three studies in which eye tracking data were collected at the Mus e des Beaux Arts in Rouen in June and July 2013 Overall the results of those three studies highlight the knowledge gained from the analysis of the very first saccade in a museum context when people look at paintings and statues The first study analyzes how viewers orient their first saccade on paintings This study shows that in a museum the first saccade is attracted toward the center of paintings This attraction toward the paintings center is found in all the subjects groups that we have studied Noteworthy this effect is significantly less pronounced in individuals who never visit museums It is among amateurs who often visit museums that the center attracts the most the first saccade Among experts painters or art history teachers and to a lesser extent among amateurs the pictorial composition largely determines the orientation of the first saccade We indeed found that as soon as the first saccade experts orient their gaze toward the main subject This phenomenon seems to be explained by the fact that experts immediately orient their gaze here measured as the first saccade toward the paintings location conveying the most meaning It can either be the center or a peripheral area depending on whether the paintings most meaningful subject is located centrally or peripherally The second study shows that the center does not attract the first saccade in 5 year old children This behavior appears later in 8 to 10 year old children However noticeably the 8 10 year old children orient significantly less frequently their first saccade toward the paintings center as adults do and this is also true when one considers non expert adult viewers The results of the third study focus on statues and reveal a very different oculomotor behavior Indeed rather than looking at the center statues viewers exhibit a clear tendency to saccade first at the statues contours This stands in contrast with the behavior that we observe with paintings Our study concludes that statues trigger a specific oculomotor behavior The latter appears to be mostly driven by the physical presence that stone bodies incarnate The movement and the climax of this movement that sculptors manage to convey thus turn out to attract the gaze in a unique fashion The book concludes that the first saccade is a powerful indicator of the oculomotor behavior that greatly improves our comprehension of the unique relationship between a viewer and artworks

The Museum Effect Jeffrey K. Smith,2014-05-29 Museums libraries and cultural institutions provide opportunities for people to understand and celebrate who they are were and might be These institutions educate the public and civilize society in a variety of ways ranging from community events to a single child making a first visit The Museum Effect documents this phenomenon explains how it happens and shows how institutions can facilitate this process Cultural institutions vary dramatically in size nature and purpose but they all allow visitors to hold conversations with artists and authors perhaps long dead These conversations sometimes with others present and sometimes with artists scientists explorers or authors not present allow visitors to explore their lives and their possible selves Cultural institutions inspire personal reflection and help visitors better themselves in that they leave having contemplated what is noble excellent or exemplary about the society in which they live The museum effect is a process through which cultural institutions educate and civilize us as individuals and as societies These institutions allow visitors to spend some time with their thoughts elevated and leave the institution better people in some meaningful fashion than when they entered This visionary book presents the underlying idea and the argument for the museum effect along with empirical research supporting that argument It will help those working in museums libraries and archivists to facilitate this process and study how this is working in their own institutions
