Louisiana Faces:

African American Foreign Correspondents Jason Berry, 2000-09-01 Since the late 1970s Louisiana a state long known for outrageous politicians has witnessed a blossoming of the arts and their enthusiastic reception by a national and even world wide audience From John Kennedy Toole s A Confederacy of Dunces to James Lee Burke s detective Dave Robicheaux from singers Fats Domino and Aaron Neville to jazz patriarch Ellis Marsalis and his music making family from George Rodrigue s blue dog to Chef Paul Prudhomme s transcendent cooking the list is long for Louisiana talent Louisiana Faces documents in images and words the human texture of this remarkable renaissance not only the painters sculptors chefs musicians poets and writers who create the art but also the ordinary people who in their daily and seasonal rhythms inform that art Some are living legends others well kept secrets all have a place and a face at the feast Philip Gould confirms his own part in the renaissance with the 125 stunning portraits in Louisiana Faces Gould s lively poignant photographs capture a range of personalities in timeless settings that mirror the larger culture whether masked riders in a Cajun carnival or jazzmen playing a street funeral Writer Jason Berry complements Gould s images with a probing witty essay that explores the parallels between art and life Using meld of interviews anecdotes history and commentary Berry treats outsized political figures and pop culture celebrities as a parade of inspiration for Louisiana artists processes in the United States and among communities that grapple with migration as an adaptation strategy As communities face the prospect of relocating because of rising seas policy makers disaster specialists and community leaders are scrambling to understand what adaptation pathways are legally possible While in its ideal application law functions blindly and without variation the authors find that legal contradictions come to bear on resettlement processes and place certain communities further in harm s way This book will unearth these contradictions in order to understand why successful community based resettlement has presented such a challenge to communities that are experiencing increasing land deterioration as a result of climate change

The Place with No Edge Adam Mandelman,2020-04-08 In The Place with No Edge Adam Mandelman follows three centuries of human efforts to inhabit and control the lower Mississippi River delta the vast watery flatlands spreading across much of southern Louisiana He finds that people s use of technology to tame unruly nature in the region has produced interdependence with rather than independence from the environment Created over millennia by deposits of silt and sand the Mississippi River delta is one of the most dynamic landscapes in North America From the eighteenth century establishment of the first French fort below New Orleans to the creation of Louisiana s Coastal Master Plan in the 2000s people have attempted to harness and master this landscape through technology Mandelman examines six specific interventions employed in the delta over time levees rice flumes pullboats geophysical surveys dredgers and petroleum cracking He demonstrates that even as people seemed to gain control over the environment they grew more deeply intertwined with and vulnerable to it The greatest folly Mandelman argues is to believe that technology affords mastery Environmental catastrophes of coastal land loss and petrochemical pollution may appear to be disconnected but both emerged from the same fantasy of harnessing nature to technology Similarly the levee system s failures and the subsequent deluge after Hurricane Katrina owe as much to centuries of human entanglement with the delta as to global warming s rising seas and strengthening storms The Place with No Edge advocates for a deeper understanding of humans relationship with nature It provides compelling evidence that altering the environment whether to make it habitable profitable or navigable inevitably brings a response sometimes with unanticipated consequences Mandelman encourages a mindfulness of the ways that our inventions engage with nature and a willingness to intervene in responsible respectful ways
