China Stands Up David Scott, 2007-05-21 In 1949 Mao Zedong made the historic proclamation that the Chinese people have stood up This statement was significant undoubtedly reflecting the changing nature not only of China's self perception but also of its relationship with the rest of the world In terms of reducing the imperialist presence of the West and Japan within China and reasserting China's territorial integrity and legal sovereignty to the outside world Mao and China can indeed be seen to have successfully stood up However the development of China's position in the hitherto Western dominated international system has been more ambiguous In China Stands Up David Scott examines the PRC's presence in the international system from 1949 to the present and also looks forward to the future asking How do we define the rise of China How does China see its role in the world What shapes China's role How do international actors view China's role in the international community Has China risen in any real sense Engaging with a rich tapestry of sources and imagery ranging from governmental media academic and popular settings and bridging the divide between history and international relations this book will appeal to students and scholars of both these fields as well as those interested in Chinese politics and foreign policy

Contagion of Violence National Research Council, Institute of Medicine, Board on Global Health, Forum on Global Violence Prevention, 2013-02-06 The past 25 years have seen a major paradigm shift in the field of violence prevention from the assumption that violence is inevitable to the recognition that violence is preventable Part of this shift has occurred in thinking about why violence occurs and where intervention points might lie In exploring the occurrence of violence researchers have recognized the tendency for violent acts to cluster to spread from place to place and to mutate from one type to another Furthermore violent acts are often preceded or followed by other violent acts In the field of public health such a process has also been seen in the infectious disease model in which an agent or vector initiates a specific biological pathway leading to symptoms of disease and infectivity The agent transmits from individual to individual and levels of the disease in the population above the baseline constitute an epidemic Although violence does not have a readily observable biological agent as an initiator it can follow similar epidemiological pathways On April 30 May 1 2012 the Institute of Medicine IOM Forum on Global Violence Prevention convened a workshop to explore the contagious nature of violence Part of the Forum's mandate is to engage in multisectoral multidirectional dialogue that explores crosscutting evidence based approaches to violence prevention and the Forum has convened four workshops to this point exploring various elements of violence prevention The workshops are designed to examine such approaches from multiple perspectives and at multiple levels of society In particular the workshop on the contagion of violence focused on exploring the epidemiology of the contagion describing possible processes and mechanisms by which violence is transmitted examining how contextual factors mitigate or exacerbate the issue Contagion of Violence Workshop Summary covers the major topics that arose during the 2 day workshop It is organized by important elements of the infectious disease model so as to present the contagion of violence in a larger context and in a more compelling and comprehensive way
