

In the readings thus far, the text identified many early American interests in the Middle East from geopolitical to missionary. Using the text and your own research, compare these early interests with contemporary American interests in the Middle East.

In particular, how has becoming 1) a global hegemon after WWII and 2) the concurrent process of 'secularization' transformed American foreign policy thought and behavior toward Israel and the Middle East region generally? What themes have remained constant and what appear new? Would you attribute changes more to America's new geopolitical role after WWII, or to the increasing secularization of American society? Explain carefully. In 500 words

Anthropology and Slavery at the Dawn of White Supremacy Michael L. Blakey, 2025-07-18 This volume examines biological and cultural data that debunk a primordial basis for racism It tracks the ancient history of all social inequity to agricultural and feudal societies The book then focuses on social and ideological developments in European societies associated with religious justifications for the enslavement of others The European Enlightenment built upon those prejudices with ideas about nature and acceptable natural causes of unequal social status for people newly classified into biological races Nineteenth century anthropology is critiqued by African diasporic scholars who are the first Americans to argue that nurture rather than nature is responsible for human variation The American Civil War brought slavery nearly to an end but racist science continued to grow as eugenics applied to justify otherwise unjustifiable structures of human inequality such as Jim Crow segregation as though they are morally sound In constructing this historical and sociological counternarrative the author provides a critical new social history that illuminates a tangled and turgid past for contemporary readers students and researchers with vital insights for anthropology sociology history cultural studies philosophy and American studies
