Maps For Local Historians A Guide To The British Sources:

Historian's Guide to Early British Maps Helen Wallis, Anita McConnell, 1995-04-06 Great Britain and Ireland enjoy a rich cartographic heritage yet historians have not made full use of early maps in their writings and research This is partly due to a lack of information about exactly which maps are available With the publication of this volume from the Royal Historical Society we now have a comprehensive guide to the early maps of Great Britain The book is divided into two parts part one describes the history and purpose of maps in a series of short essays on the early mapping of the British Isles part two comprises a guide to the collections national and regional Now available from Cambridge University Press this volume provides an essential reference tool for anyone requiring to access maps of the British Isles dating back to the medieval period and beyond

Studies of Field Systems in the British Isles Alan R. H. Baker, 1973-07-19 An enormous amount of research into British field systems has been undertaken by historical geographers economic historians and others since H L Gray's classic work on English Field Systems was published This book both synthesizes and advances our knowledge of field systems in the British Isles

Sources for English Local History W. B. Stephens, 1973

Interpreting the Landscape Michael Aston, 2002-09-11 Most places in Britain have had a local history written about them Up until this century these histories have addressed more parochial issues such as the life of the manor rather than explaining the features and changes in the landscape in a factual manner Much of what is visible today in Britain's landscape is the result of a chain of social and natural processes and can be interpreted through fieldwork as well as from old maps and documents Michael Aston uses a wide range of source material to study the complex and dynamic history of the countryside illustrating his points with aerial photographs maps plans and charts He shows how to understand the surviving remains as well as offering his own explanations for how our landscape has evolved

Fundamentals of Cartography (Second Revised and Enlarged Edition)

R.P. Misra, 2014-01-01 The first edition of Fundamentals of Cartography was published in 1969 by Prasanga University of Mysore. It was reprinted by the Concept Publishing Company New Delhi. While the book remained in currency, the cartographic processes changed drastically when information technology brought a sea of change in the sources of information, drafting of maps and printing processes. Drawing maps by hand became obsolete; surveying, whether ground or aerial, was no longer the only major source of information. In view of these changes, it became necessary to bring out a new edition. Realising that unless one knows directions, scales, projections, coordinates, ground and air surveys, one would fail to understand the proper use of modern information technology in the drawing of maps. Thus the contents of the 1969 edition are retained and new chapters have been added to update the book. In Part II of the book, a chapter on Remote Sensing and Satellite Imagery has been added, and Part V contains chapters on Computer Aided Cartography, Geographic Information System, GIS, Land Information System, LIS, and Global Positioning System, GPS.

Maps for the Local Historian John Brian Harley, 1972 The Relations of History and Geography Henry Clifford Darby, 2002 This set of twelve previously unpublished essays on historical geography written by Darby in the 1960s explains the basis of his ideas. The essays are divided into three quartets of studies relating to England, France, and the United States.

The New Nature of Maps J. B. Harley, 2002-10-03 In these essays, the author draws on ideas in art history, literature, philosophy, and the study of visual culture to subvert the traditional positivist model of cartography and replace it with one grounded in an iconological and semiotic theory of the nature of maps.

The Local Historian, 1968 English Historical Documents, 1189-1327 David Charles Douglas, Harry Rothwell, 1996 This is a collection of documents on English history. Editorial comment is directed towards making sources intelligible rather than drawing conclusions from them. Full account has been taken of modern textual criticism. A general introduction to each volume portrays the character of the period under review, and critical bibliographies have been added to assist further investigation. Documents collected include treaties, personal letters, statutes, military dispatches, diaries, declarations, newspaper articles, government and cabinet proceedings, orders, acts, sermons, pamphlets, agricultural instructions, charters, grants, guild regulations, and voting records. Volumes include genealogical tables, lists of officials, chronologies, diagrams, graphs, and maps.

Mapping It Out Mark Monmonier, 2024-05-31 Writers know only too well how long it can take and how awkward it can be to describe spatial relationships with words alone. And while a map might not always be worth a thousand words, a good one can help writers communicate an argument or explanation clearly, succinctly, and effectively. In his acclaimed How to Lie with Maps, Mark Monmonier showed how maps can distort facts. In Mapping it Out: Expository Cartography for the Humanities and Social Sciences, he shows authors and scholars how they can use expository cartography, the visual two-dimensional organization of information, to heighten the impact of their books and articles. This concise practical book is an introduction to the fundamental principles of graphic logic and design, from the basics of scale to the complex mapping of movement or change. Monmonier helps writers and researchers decide when maps are most useful and what formats work best in a wide range of subject areas from literary criticism to sociology. He demonstrates for example various techniques for representing changes and patterns, different typefaces and how they can either clarify or confuse information and the effectiveness of less traditional map forms such as visibility base maps, frame rectangle symbols and complementary scatterplot designs for conveying complex spatial relationships. There is also a wealth of practical information on map compilation, cartobibliographies, copyright and permissions, facsimile reproduction and the evaluation of source materials. Appendixes discuss the benefits and limitations of electronic graphics and pen and ink drafting and how to work with a cartographic illustrator. Clearly written and filled with real world examples, Mapping it Out demystifies mapmaking for anyone writing in the humanities and social sciences. A useful guide to a subject most people probably take too much for granted. It shows how map makers translate abstract data into eye catching cartograms as they are called. It combats cartographic illiteracy. It fights cartophobia. It may even teach you to find your way. Christopher Lehmann Haupt, The New York Times. From Sea Charts to Satellite Images David Buisseret, 1990-06-22. The authors write authoritatively and crisply. How to use maps in teaching is spelled out carefully but the authors also manage to sketch in the background of American mapping so the book is both a manual and a history. Commentaries are sprinkled with stimulating new ideas for instance on how to use bird's eye views and country atlases in the classroom and there are didactic discussions on maps showing the walking city and the impact of the street car. An extraordinarily wide range of maps is depicted which makes for good browsing, pondering and close study. This is a very good, highly attractive and worthwhile book. It will have great impact on the use of old and new maps in teaching. As well, this is a tantalizing survey of mapping the United States and will whet the appetites of students and encourage them to learn more about maps and their origins. John Warkentin, Cartographica. The Compleat Plattmaker Norman J. W. Thrower, 2023-11-10. The Compleat Plattmaker is a rich collection of essays delving into the art and science of cartography in England during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Drawing upon the extensive resources of the William Andrews Clark Memorial Library at UCLA, this volume offers insights into the intricate world of map chart and globe creation, a field that blended artistry, geography and scientific inquiry during a transformative period of exploration and intellectual development. The essays examine the evolution of cartographic practices focusing on key figures like Edmond Halley, a pioneer in thematic mapping, and the Thames School of chartmakers whose work bridged the transition from manuscript to printed maps. Topics include advancements in surveying and engraving techniques, the role of colonial mapping in expanding geographic knowledge and the interplay between scientific innovation and artistic expression. Compiled from the Clark Library's programs and seminars, this volume is a testament to the interdisciplinary exploration of cartography and its enduring impact on cultural and scientific history.
