Alpine Biodiversity in Europe Laszlo Nagy, Georg Grabherr, Christian Körner, Desmond B.A. Thompson, 2012-12-06 The United Nations Conference on the Environment and Development UNCED held in Rio de Janeiro in 1992 spawned a multitude of programmes aimed at assessing managing and conserving the earth's biological diversity One important issue addressed at the conference was the mountain environment A specific feature of high mountains is the so called alpine zone i.e. the treeless regions at the uppermost reaches Though covering only a very small proportion of the land surface the alpine zone contains a relatively large number of plants animals fungi and microbes which are specifically adapted to cold environments This zone contributes fundamentally to the planet's biodiversity and provides many resources for mountain dwelling as well as lowland people However rapid and largely man made changes are affecting mountain ecosystems such as soil erosion losses of habitat and genetic diversity and climate change all of which have to be addressed As stated in the European Community Biodiversity Strategy the global scale of biodiversity reduction or losses and the interdependence of different species and ecosystems across national borders demands concerted international action Managing biodiversity in a rational and sustainable way needs basic knowledge on its qualitative and quantitative aspects at local regional and global scales This is particularly true for mountains which are distributed throughout the world and are indeed hot spots of biodiversity in absolute terms as well as relative to the surrounding lowlands

Maps of Distribution of Norwegian Vascular Plants, 1996 British Plant Communities: Volume 2, Mires and Heaths J. S. During the Last Glacial Pieter Lambertus Ploeger, 1968 Maps of Distribution of Norwegian Vascular Plants Rolf Y. Berg, Lapland: A Natural History Derek Ratcliffe, 2010-06-30 This stunning new Poyser title looks at the flora and fauna of Lapland that area of northern Europe and northwestern Russia which lies within the Arctic circle After general introductions the book examines the Lapland ecosystems and species by habitat type with one chapter dealing with freshwater habitats another with open tundra and so on The history of natural history study in the region and the conservation issues affecting it today are also discussed The book is illustrated throughout with a wealth of the author's own colour photographs and there are also some line drawings and a number of maps and other figures to illustrate key points This is a wonderfully evocative book which creates a vivid sense of place for one of the planet's last wildernesses and will appeal to anyone who loves wildlife and wild places A rare window onto one of Europe's most unspoiled areas by the outstanding British field naturalist of the late 20th century The Independent An informative and easy to read text on a part of the natural world unfamiliar to many It is a fascinating enjoyable book Wildlife Activist Summer 2006 Tromura, 1978

Guide to Standard Floras of the World David G. Frodin, 2001-06-14 This 2001 book provides a selective annotated bibliography of the principal floras and related works of inventory for vascular plants The second edition was completely updated and expanded to take into account the substantial literature of the late twentieth century and features a more fully developed review of the history of floristic documentation The works covered are principally specialist publications such as floras checklists distribution atlases systematic iconographies and enumerations or catalogues although a relatively few more popularly oriented books are also included The Guide is organised in ten geographical divisions with these successively divided into regions and units each of which is prefaced with a historical review of floristic studies In addition to the bibliography the book includes general chapters on botanical bibliography the history of floras and general principles and current trends plus an appendix on bibliographic searching a lexicon of serial abbreviations and author and geographical indexes The Cultural Landscape Hilary H. Birks, 1988 The Cultural Landscape Past Present and Future considers different aspects of man's intervention with natural vegetation and the landscape resulting from a long equilibrium of co-existence These landscapes are not stable and the recent and ever accelerating changes in technology and life style have increasingly affected many ancient landscapes as old land use practices are abandoned and traditions forgotten The papers in this book describe and trace the development of cultural landscapes in different climatic and biogeographical regions in Europe Remnants of traditional land use still remaining are described particularly from Western Norway where traditions have lingered because the rugged topography of the region is inimicable to high technology Each chapter is by an expert in the field The topics cover the documentation of present cultural landscapes their maintenance and restoration and the history of the development of cultural landscapes from the Stone Age onwards linking the intensity of landscape utilization with population dynamics and technological attainments The disciplines involved include vegetation science vegetation
