March Of Democracy 7vol Record Of 64:

Communicative Rationality and Deliberative Democracy of Jürgen Habermas Ukoro Theophilus Igwe, 2004 This book critically investigates Jürgen Habermas's attempt to develop communicative conception of human rationality. It explores Habermas's fundamental commitment to the practical import and ramifications of communicative rationality in the field of African political philosophy. Within this context, Habermas's ambitious project to reconcile law, justice, and democracy is wide-ranging. This work explores how it is among other things that deliberative institutions can become more democratic through as Dewey put it, improvements in the methods and conditions of debate, discussion, and persuasion.

US Power and the Internet in International Relations M. Carr, 2016-04-08 Despite the pervasiveness of the Internet and its importance to a wide range of state functions, we still have little understanding of its implications in the context of International Relations. Combining the Philosophy of Technology with IR theories of power, this study explores state power in the information age.

Death in the Congo Emmanuel Gerard, Bruce Kuklick, 2015-02-10 Death in the Congo is a gripping account of a murder that became one of the defining events in postcolonial African history. It is no less the story of the untimely death of a national dream, a hope-filled vision very different from what the war-ravaged Democratic Republic of the Congo became in the second half of the twentieth century. When Belgium relinquished colonial control in June 1960, a charismatic thirty-five-year-old African nationalist, Patrice Lumumba, became prime minister of the new republic. Yet stability immediately broke down. A mutinous Congolese Army spread havoc while Katanga Province in southeast Congo seceded altogether. Belgium dispatched its military to protect its citizens, and the United Nations soon intervened with its own peacekeeping troops. Meanwhile, behind the scenes, both the Soviet Union and the United States maneuvered to turn the crisis to their Cold War advantage. A coup in September, secretly aided by the UN, toppled Lumumba's government. In January 1961, armed men drove Lumumba to a secluded corner of the Katanga bush, stood him up beside a hastily dug grave, and shot him. His rule as Africa's first democratically elected leader had lasted ten weeks. More than fifty years later, the murky circumstances and tragic symbolism of Lumumba's assassination still trouble many people around the world. Emmanuel Gerard and Bruce Kuklick pursue events through a web of international politics, revealing a tangled history in which many people, black and white, well-meaning and ruthless African, European, and American, bear responsibility for this crime. Antiquarian Bookman, 1964

Writing the Wrongs Elizabeth Faue, 2018-05-31 Eva McDonald Valesh was one of the Progressive Era's foremost labor publicists. Challenging the narrow confines placed on women, Valesh became a successful investigative journalist, organizer, and public speaker for labor reform. Valesh was a compatriot of the labor leaders of her day and the right-hand man of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. Events she covered during her colorful unconventional reporting career included the Populist revolt, the Cuban crisis of the 1890s, and the 1910 Shirtwaistmakers uprising. She was described as bright, even comet-like, by her admirers, but her enemies saw her as a pest who took all the benefit that her sex controls when in argument with a man Elizabeth Faue examines the pivotal events that transformed this outspoken daughter of a working class Scots Irish family into a national political figure interweaving the study of one woman's fascinating life with insightful analysis of the changing character of American labor reform during the period from 1880 to 1920 In her journey through the worlds of labor journalism and politics Faue lays bare the underside of social reform and reveals how front line workers in labor's political culture reporters investigators and lecturers provoked and informed American society by writing about social wrongs Compelling insightful and at times humorous Writing the Wrongs is a window on the Progressive Era on social history and the new journalism and on women's lives and the meanings of class and gender

,1960 The Bookseller, 1911 Official organ of the book trade of the United Kingdom Dissenting Voices in America's Rise to Power David Mayers, 2007-02-15 This book offers a major rereading of US foreign policy from Thomas Jefferson's purchase of Louisiana expanse to the Korean War This period of one hundred and fifty years saw the expansion of the United States from fragile republic to transcontinental giant David Mayers explores the dissenting voices which accompanied this dramatic ascent focusing on dissenters within the political and military establishment and on the recurrent patterns of dissent that have transcended particular policies and crises The most stubborn of these sprang from anxiety over the material and political costs of empire while other strands of dissent have been rooted in ideas of exigent justice realpolitik and moral duties existing beyond borders Such dissent is evident again in the contemporary world when the US occupies the position of preeminent global power Professor Mayers's study reminds us that America's path to power was not as straightforward as it might now seem

The Moment of Decision Randall M. Miller, John McKivigan, 1994-06-22 Focusing on nineteenth century social reform this volume considers the moment of decision for representative Americans the moment that converted them to action altered their identity and in some instances altered the historical context in which the decision was made Management, Labour, and Industrial Politics in Modern Europe Joseph Melling, Alan McKinlay, 1996 This major new book offers a comparative survey of management labour and productivity politics in twentieth century Europe The authors detailed assessments of industrial and political campaigns to raise productivity growth in Britain Germany and Sweden during this century Ranging from explorations of the high politics of the nation state and the impact of the Marshall plan on the European countries to careful assessments of the productivity struggles which took place in the coal mining and metal working industries of modern Europe each of these essays provides a rich context for understanding the rise and fall of the social democratic project in the reconstruction of Western Europe The contributors critically assess claims that workers participation in economic decision making was a natural feature of modern production while also emphasising the significance of economic reforms which were enacted in the post war years Management Labour and Industrial Politics in Modern Europe offers a deeper understanding of the performance of the European economies and the politics of reconstruction by combining an analysis of state initiatives with an examination of the strategies pursued by management and labour in the key sectors of European industry in these decades East European Accessions Index ,1958
