Myths and More on Etruscan Stone Sarcophagi L. Bouke van der Meer, 2004 Myths and More on Etruscan Stone Sarcophagi focuses on the chronology and meaning of representations in painting or painted relief on one hundred forty eight coffins After the appearance of R Herbig s catalogue Die jungeretruskischen Steinsarkophage Berlin in 1952 many new tombs with sarcophagi were discovered It is therefore worthwhile to review Herbig s chronology and interpretations after a period of fifty years It appears that the sarcophagi have been made over a period of around six generations between approximately 350 and 200 BC at a time which was crucial in the history of Etruria Between 396 and 264 BC Rome conquered the Etruscan world The question is what impact did this conquest have on the minds of the Etruscan ruling elite and of the artisans at Vulci Cerveteri Tarquinia and its hinterlands at Orvieto Chiusi and Volterra Attention is paid to the find spots the family tombs the owners of the sarcophagi as well as to their social background and civil status The shift in the choice of themes on the coffins showing first mythological then Underworld and so called decorative scenes and the reason for iconographic changes will be discussed It will be explained why the choice of mythological themes is almost entirely limited to Trojan and Theban myths Non mythological scenes processions and rites of passage the Underworld hunting and battles including Celtomachies will also be dealt with The so called heraldic schemes may have a symbolic meaning referring to Dionysiac pleasures in the Underworld Finally the scenes on children s sarcophagi with a similar content are given attention A catalogue will list all the Etruscan stone sarcophagi with representations providing references to the most modern publications

Dependency and Social Inequality in Pre-Roman Italy Martin Bentz, Patrick Zeidler, 2024-10-21 In the past most studies on Pre Roman societies in Italy 1st millennium BCE focused on the elites their representation and cultural contacts The aim of this volume is to look at dependent and marginalized social groups which are less visible and often even difficult to define slaves servants freedmen captives foreigners athletes women children etc The methodological challenges connected to the study of such heterogeneous and scattered sources are addressed Is the evidence representative enough for defining different forms of dependencies Can we rely on written and pictorial sources or do they only reflect Greek and Roman views and iconographic conventions Which social groups can t be traced in the literary and archaeological record For the investigation of this topic we combined historical and epigraphical studies Greek and Roman literary sources Etruscan inscriptions with material culture studies images sanctuaries necropoleis including anthropological and bioarchaeological methods These new insights open a new chapter in the study of dependency and social inequality in the societies of Pre Roman Italy
