A Narrative of Communal Politics Salil Misra, 2001-05 The promulgation of the Government of India Act of 1935 not only reinforced the phenomenon of separate electorates on the basis of religion but led to a dramatic change in the nature of communalism in the Indian subcontinent This is the story of how the different political forces in Uttar Pradesh the Congress the Muslim League the landlords and the Hindu Mahasabha responded to the new context and how they strove to establish control over the available political space This seminal work is a significant departure from other studies of the period in that it addresses communalism as an independent force acutely conscious of its interests and very keen on preserving itself and not allied to either the Congress or the British

Identity and Religion Amalendu Misra,2004-08-30 A sensitive and intelligent account of the Indian nationalist thought and the difficulties it faced in doing justice to India s Islamic inheritance Lord Parekh Fellow of the British Academy A thoughtful well researched and original analysis of the nationalist conceptualisation of the Muslim presence in India Professor Noel O Sullivan University of Hull Amalendu Misra shows that while some eminent nationalist leaders were implacably hostile to Muslims even wholly secular ones were uneasy with India s Muslim past and had a generally unfavourable disposition towards both Muslims and Islam The book explicates this by focusing on the writings of Vivekananda Gandhi Nehru and Savarkar supported by a wealth of examples from a wide range of contexts It argues that the views of these four prominent individuals were heavily shaped by British historiography as well as their respective visions of independent India The author goes on to suggest how modern India needs to redefine itself to flourish as a genuinely secular democracy
