

NARRATOLOGY

Todorov's narrative theory suggest that any story will move through Five separate stages, in a chronological order.

1. Equilibrium (Status Quo):

An initial situation — the 'once upon a time moment' that gives balance and stability.

2. Disequilibrium:

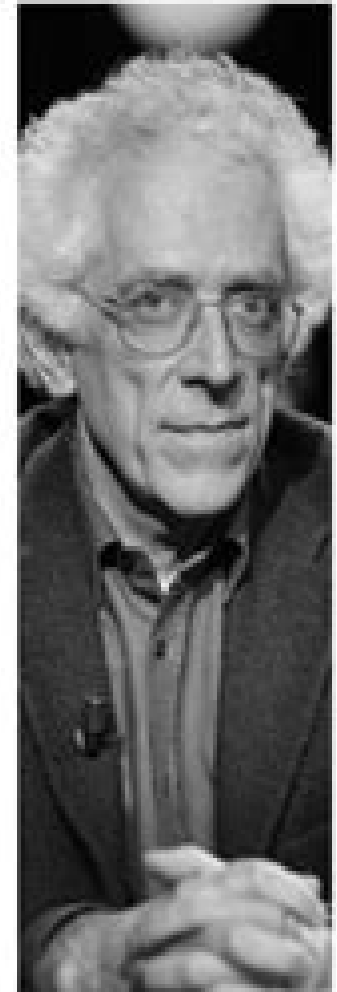

The balance is disrupted by a problem/event, setting off a train or series of other events.

3. Recognition that this disruption has taken place

4. Attempts are made by characters to repair the disruption

5. Resolution:

The problem is solved, allowing reinstatement of the initial equilibrium/new equilibrium.

Narratology Of The Autobiography An Anal:

The Palgrave Handbook of Feminist, Queer and Trans* Narrative Studies Vera Nünning, Corinna Assmann, 2025-07-09

The Palgrave Handbook of Feminist Queer and Trans Narrative Studies provides a comprehensive overview of the intersection between narrative theory and feminist queer and trans theory. Bringing together eminent and emerging scholars from a range of disciplines, it foregrounds connections between new views on gender and recent developments in narratology. The first section outlines key concepts for the study of narrative and gender and features theory-oriented chapters on what it means for the study of narrative to go beyond gender binaries. The middle sections cover some of the currently most influential fields of narratology and literary theory: cognitive and eco narratology, postcolonial studies, as well as concepts that are central to both narrative and gender studies, such as affect and performativity. The last section explores the meaning of gender in various genres and media formats, from science fiction and trans autobiographies to film, TV, and social media. This field-changing volume shows how the proliferation of new ways to think about gender identity and sexuality demands a strong reconsideration of narratological methodologies. Chapter 23 is available open access under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License via link.springer.com. Life Storying in Oral History Jarmila Mildorf, 2023-06-06

This book proposes the concept of fictional contamination to capture the fact that fictionalization and literary complexity can be found across different kinds of narrative. Exploring conversational storytelling in oral history and other interviews from socionarratological perspectives, the book systematically discusses key narrative features such as story templates, dialogue, double deixis, focalization or perspective taking, and mind representation, as well as special narrative forms including second person narration and narratives of vicarious experience. These features and forms attest to storytellers' linguistic creativity and serve the function of involving listeners by making stories more interesting. Shared by fictional and conversational narratives at a basic level, they can bring conversational stories closer to fiction and potentially compromise their credibility if used extensively. Detailed analyses of broad-ranging examples are undertaken against a rich narrative theoretical background drawn from the fields of narratology, linguistics, oral history, life storytelling, psychology, and philosophy. The book is of interest to scholars and students working in these fields and anyone fascinated by the richness of conversational storytelling.

Autobiography of a Generation Luisa Passerini, 1996-10-25 The year 1968 is symbolic in Italy of a decade of struggles by students, women, workers, intellectuals, and technicians. This work documents the intricate web of individual and communal experiences in the political movements of the 1960s. Passerini alternates chapters based on her diaries with interviews of other participants. Honour in African History John Iliffe, 2005 This is the first published account of the role played by ideas of honour in African history from the fourteenth century to the present day. It argues that appreciation of these ideas is essential to an understanding of past and present African behaviour. Before European conquest, many African men cultivated heroic honour; others admired the civic virtues of the patriarchal householder, and women honoured one another for industry.

endurance and devotion to their families These values both conflicted and blended with Islamic and Christian teachings Colonial conquest fragmented heroic cultures but inherited ideas of honour found new expression in regimental loyalty respectability professionalism working class masculinity the changing gender relationships of the colonial order and the nationalist movements which overthrew that order Today the same inherited notions obstruct democracy inspire resistance to tyranny and motivate the defence of dignity in the face of AIDS
