Perception Learning And The Self Essays In The Philosophy Of Psychology:

Perception, Learning and the Self D. W. Hamlyn, 2022-06-01 First published in 1983 Perception Learning and the Self is a collection of essays demonstrating the incompleteness of the information processing model in cognitive psychology and the connection between epistemic factors and social conditions in the making of the self It is suggested that any framework employed to view cognition must be an essentially social one in which knowers are seen as selves who are agents with feelings and attitudes Professor Hamlyn argues that by failing to acknowledge this social element the information processing model presents an overly simplistic view of the systems that underlie cognition and thus is liable to distort what is at stake Professor Hamlyn considers the contributions of a number of major psychologists to this area of study including James Gibson Jean Piaget and Sigmund Freud This book will be of interest to students of philosophy and psychology

Bibliography of Semiotics, 1975-1985, 1986-01-01 This bibliography of semiotic studies covering the years 1975 1985 impressively reveals the world wide intensification in the field During this decade national semiotic societies have been founded all over the world a great number of international national and local semiotic conferences have taken place the number of periodicals and book series devoted to semiotics has increased as has the number of books and dissertations in the field This bibliography is the result of a dedicated effort to approach complete coverage

Divine Revelation and Human Learning David Heywood, 2017-05-15 How do we learn about God In an age of competing world views what is the basis of the Christian claim to offer the truth about God the world and ourselves David Heywood charts a path through the study of human knowledge showing how the insights of theology philosophy and psychology complement and amplify one another and bringing the experience of revelation within the scope of the study of human learning He shows the relationship between human psychology and the work of the Holy Spirit and demonstrates the credibility of the Christian claim to a transforming knowledge of God in Jesus Christ Offering a new model for the relationship of theology to the natural and social sciences David Heywood shows how the claim of Christian theology to deal in issues of universal truth can be upheld For Christian education this book provides a theological rationale for the use of methods of teaching and learning of educationally proven effectiveness

Julian of Norwich Kevin Magill, 2006-07-13 Julian of Norwich was a fourteenth century woman who at the age of thirty had a series of vivid visions centred around the crucified Christ Twenty years later while living as an anchoress in a church she is believed to have set out these visions in a text called the Showing of Love Going against the current trend to place Julian in the category of mystic a classification which defines her visions as deeply private psychological events this book sets Julian's thinking in the context of a visionary project used to instruct the Christian community Drawing on recent developments in philosophy that debate the objectivity and rationality of vision and perception Kevin J Magill gives full attention to the depth and richness of the visual language and modes of perception in the Showing of Love In particular the book focuses on the ways in which Julian presented her vision to the Christian society around her demonstrating the educative potential of interaction between the isolated anchoress and the wider community Challenging Julian's identification as a mystic and solitary female writer this book argues that Julian engaged in a variety of educative methods oral visual conversational mnemonic alliterative that extend the usefulness of her text

New Perspectives on Individual Differences in Language Learning and Teaching Mirosław Pawlak, 2012-04-05 The volume constitutes an attempt to capture the intricate relationship between individual learner differences and other variables which are of interest to theorists researchers and practitioners representing such diverse branches of applied linguistics as psycholinguistics sociolinguistics pragmatics or language teaching methodology It brings together contributions by Polish and international authors including leading experts in the field touching upon changing perspectives on individual variation cognitive affective and social variables learning deficits as well as their impact on learning and teaching It offers a multifaceted perspective on these problems and shows how theory and research can be translated into classroom practice

Towards an Understanding of Language Learner Self-Concept Sarah Mercer, 2011-01-04 This book contributes to our growing understanding of the nature and development of language learner self concept It assesses the relevant literature in the disciplines of psychology and applied linguistics and describes in depth qualitative research examining the self concepts of tertiary level EFL learners Although researchers in applied linguistics and SLA have recognized the importance of self constructs there remains little empirical work in the context of foreign language learning that focuses exclusively and at length on this central psychological construct The content of this monograph draws on interdisciplinary sources with input from psychology and applied linguistics It will appeal to students and researchers interested in language learner psychology as well as self related constructs in general The text provides insights into how learners view themselves and how these self beliefs can develop and affect the progress of an individual's language learning

The Life of Irony and the Ethics of Belief David Wisdo, 1993-01-01 Wisdo concludes that the fragility of religious belief is due to the unavoidable irony intrinsic to the religious life

Self Knowledge in Thomas Aquinas Richard T. Lambert, 2007-02-01 This study concerns the position of Saint Thomas Aquinas on human self knowledge the soul's knowledge of itself in medieval idiom Its main goal is to present a comprehensive account of Aquinas's philosophy of self knowledge by clarifying his texts on this topic and explaining why he made the claims he did A second objective is to situate Thomas's position on self awareness within general world and specific thirteenth century traditions concerning this theme And a third is to apply Aquinas's approach and insights to selected and contemporary issues that involve self knowledge such as the alleged paradoxes of self reflection and of unconscious awareness The primary approach is that of critical narrative which attempts to understand St Thomas's texts by posing critical questions for them While this questioning may expose certain texts as equivocal or unsupported usually Thomas emerges as coherent reasonable and better understood This work is serious scholarship that presumes reader interest in philosophical reflection and some background in medieval type thinking On the other hand the book is not narrowly specialized in Aquinas or a single methodology but includes broad reference to worldwide traditions and attempts to integrate St Thomas's approach into topics of contemporary interest Multiple Perspectives on the Self in SLA Sarah Mercer, Marion Williams, 2014-02-03 Instead of viewing different perspectives on the self as competing with each other and considering one perspective on the self as being inherently better than another this book takes the view that a fuller more comprehensive picture of the self in SLA can be gained by examining and combining insights from different perspectives This original collection of papers thus attempts to provide a thorough overview of the ways in which the self can be conceptualised in SLA contexts The editors have brought together a diverse range of theoretical perspectives on the self to allow the reader to appreciate the insights that each approach contributes to overall understandings of the self in the domain of second language acquisition and foreign language learning Philosophy of Development A.W. van Haaften, Michiel Korthals, T.E. Wren, 2013-04-17 Philosophy of development is a fascinating area of research at the intersection of philosophy psychology and education This book is unique in that it combines a broad sketch of contemporary developmental theory with detailed discussions of its central issues in order to construct a general framework for understanding and analyzing theories of individual and collective development in various domains ranging from cognitive and moral development to developments in art Special attention is also given to the rich relations between conceptual development and education Orientation to Inquiry in a Reflective Professional Psychology Lisa Tsoi Hoshmand, 1994-01-01 This book approaches professional inquiry in psychology from a perspective that integrates research and practice and prepares students for the diversity of methods employed in the field It examines a broad range of models and methods of inquiry in both research and practice and provides a framework for linking issues of knowledge to the special context of professional psychology Guided by a vision of psychology as a self critical discipline and a reflective profession Hoshmand provides a pluralistic perspective on inquiry including alternative paradigms for the professional education of clinical counseling consulting and other practicing psychologists as reflective scientist practitioners She gives special attention to the cognitive development and knowledge processes of the professional and offers suggestions for professional training and mechanisms of teaching and learning

Foundations of Liberalism Margaret Moore, 1993-02-18 This book is an original critique of contemporary liberal theories of justice focusing on the problem of how to relate the personal point of view of the individual to the impartial perspective of justice Margaret Moore's examination of prominent contemporary arguments for liberal justice reveals that individualist theories are subject to two serious difficulties the motivation problem and the integrity problem Individualists cannot explain why the individual should be motivated to act in accordance with the dictates of liberal justice and related to this offer radically incoherent accounts of the person Revisionist liberal attempts to ground liberalism in contextual and perfectionist terms offer more defensible foundations but Dr Moore argues that such theories do not support liberal political principles She concludes by sketching a historical and concrete approach to political and ethical theorizing which reformulates the relation between self interest and morality and is not subject to the problems that beset liberal individualist theories of justice Her book advances the debate between communitarians and liberals about the kind of moral foundation which a liberal society requires Language, Ethics and Animal Life Niklas Forsberg, Mikel Burley, Nora Hämmäläinen, 2012-10-11 New research into human and animal consciousness a heightened awareness of the methods and consequences of intensive farming and modern concerns about animal welfare and ecology are among the factors that have made our relationship to animals an area of burning interest in contemporary philosophy Utilizing methods inspired by Ludwig Wittgenstein the contributors to this volume explore this area in a variety of ways Topics discussed include scientific vs non scientific ways of describing human and animal behaviour the ethics of eating particular animal species human nature emotions and instinctive reactions responses of wonder towards the natural world the moral relevance of literature the concept of dignity and the question whether non human animals can use language This book will be of great value to anyone interested in philosophical and interdisciplinary issues concerning language ethics and humanity's relation to animals and the natural world

Emotions and Understanding Y. Gustafsson, C. Kronqvist, M. McEachrane, 2008-11-27 This unique collection of articles on emotion by Wittgensteinian philosophers provides a fresh perspective on the questions framing the current philosophical and scientific debates about emotions and offers significant insights into the role of emotions for understanding interpersonal relations and the relation between emotion and ethics Equilibrium in the Balance S. Haroutunian, 2012-12-06 For some time now the study of cognitive development has been far and away the most active discipline within developmental psychology Although there would be much disagreement as to the exact proportion of papers published in developmental journals that could be considered cognitive 50% seems like a conservative estimate Hence a series of scholarly books devoted to work in cognitive development is especially appropriate at this time The Springer Series in Cognitive Development contains two basic types of books namely edited collections of original chapters by several authors and original volumes written by one author or a small group of authors The flagship for the Springer Series is a serial publication of the advances type carrying the subtitle Progress in Cognitive Development Research Each volume in the Progress sequence is strongly thematic in that it is limited to some well defined domain of cognitive developmental research e g logical and mathematical development development of learning All Progress volumes will be edited collections Editors of such collections upon consultation with the Series Editor may elect to have their books published either as contributions to the Progress sequence or as separate volumes All books written by one author or a small group of authors are being published as separate volumes within the series Challenging Boundaries in Language Education Achilleas Kostoulas, 2019-06-08 This edited collection challenges the perceptions of disciplinary linguistic geographical and ideological borders that run across language education By highlighting commonalities and tracing connections between diverse sub fields that have traditionally been studied separately the book shows how the perspectives of practitioners and researchers working in diverse areas of language education can mutually inform each other It consists of three thematic parts Part I outlines the field of language education and challenges its definition by highlighting additional theoretical constructs that have tended to be viewed as separate from language education Part II investigates curricular boundaries showing how the language learning curriculum can be enriched by connections with other curricular areas Lastly Part III looks into the challenges and opportunities associated with language education against the backdrop of globalisation

Dictionary of Twentieth-Century British Philosophers

Stuart Brown,2005-06-01 This is a two volume work with entries on individuals who made some contribution to philosophy in the period 1900 to 1960 or soon after The entries deal with the whole philosophical work of an individual or in the case of philosophers still living their whole work to date Typically the individuals included have been born by 1935 and by now have made their main contributions Contributions to the subject typically take the form of books or journal articles but influential teachers and people otherwise important in the world of philosophy may also be included The dictionary includes amateurs as well as professional philosophers and where appropriate thinkers whose main discipline was outside philosophy There are special problems about the term British in the twentieth century partly because of human migration partly because of decolonialization and the changing denotation of the term The intention has been to include not only those who were British subjects at least for a significant part of their lives even if they mostly lived outside what is now the U K but also people who spent a significant part of their lives in Britain itself irrespective of their nationality or country of origin In the first category are included for instance a number of people who were born and educated in Britain but who subsequently taught in universities abroad In the second category are included those who were born elsewhere but who came to Britain and contributed to its philosophical culture

Perceptions of Phobia and Phobics Beulah McNab,1993 Describes phobia and phobics within the framework of contemporary perceptual and psychodynamic theories The book suggests that the phobic has a distorted sense of environmental configuration and that the explanation of such distortions may be found in contemporary perceptual theories

The Remembering Self Ulric Neisser,Robyn Fivush,1994-10-28 This book brings a surprisingly wide range of intellectual disciplines to bear on the self narrative and the self The same ecological cognitive approach that successfully organized Ulric Neisserts earlier volume on The Perceived Self now relates ideas from the experimental developmental and clinical study of memory to insights from post modernism and literature Although auto biographical remembering is an essential way of giving meaning to our lives the memories we construct are never fully consistent and often simply wrong In the first chapter Neisser considers the so called false memory syndrome in this context other contributors discuss the effects of amnesia the development of remembering in childhood the social construction of memory and its alleged self servingness and the contrast between literary and psychological models of the self Jerome Bruner Peggy Miller Alan Baddeley Kenneth Gergen and Daniel Albright are among the contributors to this unusual synthesis
