

LIFE AS A HUNTER

Part 1

Lions live in groups called prides. These prides consist of males, females and juvenile cubs (baby lions). In these prides, females are responsible for hunting and taking care of their young.

If a female's body size is approximately 130kg, she must eat 13,500 kcal/day to survive and succeed in the environment. Each time a female hunts, she will have to use up the stored energy in her body in order to be able to take down prey. Female lions have approximately 15,000 kcal stored and, therefore, cannot expend more than 15,000kcal when they hunt.

Listed below are the prey species that lions will hunt and the energy costs/gains to hunting each of them. Notice how as the mass of the prey increases, the amount of energy that the lion will gain increases as well.

	Mass of prey item	Total energy cost to hunt and kill (how much energy the lion uses)	Total energy available per kill (how much energy the lion will gain)
Meerkat	0.77kg	-3,000kcal	+5,000kcal
Warthog	60kg	-5,000kcal	+12,000kcal
Wildebeest	265kg	-10,000kcal	+25,000kcal
Zebra	310kg	-55,000kcal	+170,000kcal

Round 1: You are tracking a female lion. Determine the maximum number of each prey she can hunt using her stored energy (15,000kcal). Remember that in order to survive, she will need to consume at least 13,500kcal each day. If a prey cannot provide enough energy for the female, but requires a lot of energy to hunt, it would not be considered worthwhile to hunt alone.

Species	Number of prey hunted and consumed	Energy cost per prey (-kcal)	Energy cost to hunt total number of prey (-kcal) (must be less than 15,000)  (number of prey x energy cost per prey)	Energy available per prey (+kcal)	Energy available for total number of prey (+kcal)  (number of prey x energy available)	Net energy gained (+kcal)  (Energy available for total number of prey - energy cost to hunt total number of prey)	Is this species worthwhile to hunt alone?  (yes/no)

Kellert,Timothy Farnham,2013-04-10 Scientists theologians and the spiritually inclined as well as all those concerned with humanity s increasingly widespread environmental impact are beginning to recognize that our ongoing abuse of the earth diminishes our moral as well as our material condition Many people are coming to believe that strengthening the bonds among spirituality science and the natural world offers an important key to addressing the pervasive environmental problems we face The Good in Nature and Humanity brings together 20 leading thinkers and writers including Ursula Goodenough Lynn Margulis Dorion Sagan Carl Safina David Petersen Wendell Berry Terry Tempest Williams and Barry Lopez to examine the divide between faith and reason and to seek a means for developing an environmental ethic that will help us confront two of our most imperiling crises global environmental destruction and an impoverished spirituality The book explores the ways in which science spirit and religion can guide the experience and understanding of our ongoing relationship with the natural world and examines how the integration of science and spirituality can equip us to make wiser choices in using and managing the natural environment The book also provides compelling stories that offer a narrative understanding of the relations among science spirit and nature Grounded in the premise that neither science nor religion can by itself resolve the prevailing malaise of environmental and moral decline contributors seek viable approaches to averting environmental catastrophe and more positively to achieving a more harmonious relationship with the natural world By bridging the gap between the rational and the religious through the concern of each for understanding the human relation to creation The Good in Nature and Humanity offers an
