The Ephemeral History of Perfume Holly Dugan, 2011-11-01 In contrast to the other senses smell has long been thought of as too elusive too fleeting for traditional historical study Holly Dugan disagrees arguing that there are rich accounts documenting how men and women produced consumed and represented perfumes and their ephemeral effects She delves deeply into the cultural archive of olfaction to explore what a sense of smell reveals about everyday life in early modern England In this book Dugan focuses on six important scents incense rose sassafras rosemary ambergris and jasmine She links these smells to the unique spaces they inhabited churches courts contact zones plague ridden households luxury markets and pleasure gardens and the objects used to dispense them This original approach provides a rare opportunity to study how early modern men and women negotiated the environment in their everyday lives and the importance of smell to their daily actions Dugan defines perfume broadly to include spices flowers herbs animal parts trees resins and other ingredients used to produce artificial scents smokes fumes airs balms powders and liquids In researching these Renaissance aromas Dugan uncovers the extraordinary ways now largely

Lafayette's personal friendship with George Washington who went so far as to refer to Lafayette as his adopted son and his pivotal role as Washington's aide de camp in helping establish the fledgling American nation Lafayette's presence at the British surrender at Yorktown is a stark reminder of just how closely our forefather's victory hinged on the help of our French allies who were roused into action by Lafayette himself equally absorbing and less well known is Lafayette's idealistic but naive efforts to plant the fruits of the American style democracy he so admired in the unreceptive soil of his homeland

The Oxford History of Poetry in English, 2024-10-25 The Oxford History of Poetry in English OHOPE is designed to offer a fresh multi-voiced and comprehensive analysis of poetry from Anglo-Saxon culture through contemporary British, Irish, American and Global culture including English, Scottish and Welsh poetry, Anglo-American colonial and post-colonial poetry and poetry in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Caribbean, India, Africa, Asia and other international locales. OHOPE both synthesizes existing scholarship and presents cutting-edge research employing a global team of expert contributors for each of the fourteen volumes. By taking as its purview the full seventeenth century (1603-1700), this volume redraws the existing literary historical map and expands upon recent rethinking of the canon. Placing the revolutionary years at the centre of a century of poetic transformation and putting the Restoration back into the seventeenth century, the volume registers the transformative effects on poetic forms of a century of social, political and religious upheaval. It considers the achievements of a number of women poets not yet fully integrated into traditional literary histories. It assimilates the vibrant literature of the English Revolution to what came before and after, registering its long-term impact. It traces the development of print culture and of the literary marketplace alongside the continued circulation of poetry in manuscript. It places John Milton, Andrew Marvell, Margaret Cavendish and Katherine Philips and other mid-century poets into the full century of specifically literary development. It traces continuity and change, imitation and innovation in the full century trajectory of such poetic genres as sonnet, elegy, satire, georgic, epigram, ode, devotional lyric and epic. The volume's attention to poetic form builds on the current upswing in historicist formalism, allowing a close focus on poetry as an intensely aesthetic and social literary mode. Designed for maximum classroom utility, the organization is both thematic and in the authors' section, chronological. After a comprehensive Introduction, organizational sections focus on Transitions, Materiality, Production and Circulation, Poetics and Form, Genres and Poets.
