the Sexual Offences Act 2003 In depth theoretical discussion of the rationale for age of consent laws An original proposal to reduce the age of consent to 14 for young people who are less than two years apart in age Responding to contemporary concerns about young people s sexual behaviour sexual abuse and paedophilia this book will engage readers in law and socio legal studies sociology history politics social policy youth and childhood studies and gender and sexuality studies and professionals and practitioners working with young people The Beatles and Sixties Britain Marcus Collins,2020-03-05 In this rigorous study Marcus Collins reconceives the Beatles social cultural and political impact on sixties Britain

Handbook of Policing Tim Newburn,2012-08-21 This new edition of the Handbook of Policing updates and expands the highly successful first edition and now includes a completely new chapter on policing and forensics It provides a comprehensive but highly readable overview of policing in the UK and is an essential reference point combining the expertise of leading academic experts on policing and policing practitioners themselves The Human Rights of Children Michael

Freeman,2022-03-16 For decades Professor Michael Freeman has without doubt been one of the world s most influential scholars in international children s rights His scholarship has been at the forefront of the field and has helped shape many of the developments within it This collection offers the reader a thought provoking snapshot of some of his most seminal essays written and or published over the past 30 years Together they highlight above all the interdisciplinary nature of the issues he discusses Legal doctrinal questions that make the case for recognising that children have rights are of course discussed But aspects of moral and political philosophy are dealt with as well in addition to among other other disciplines history theology psychology and antropology The Culture of Control David Garland,2024-05-31 The past 30 years have seen vast changes in our attitudes toward crime More and more of us live in gated communities prison populations have skyrocketed and issues such as racial profiling community policing and zero tolerance policies dominate the headlines How is it that our response to crime and our sense of criminal justice has come to be so dramatically reconfigured David Garland charts the changes in crime and criminal justice in America and Britain over the past twenty five years showing how they have been shaped by two underlying social forces the distinctive social organization of late modernity and the neoconservative politics that came to dominate the United States and the United Kingdom in the 1980s Garland explains how the new policies of crime and punishment welfare and security and the changing class race and gender relations that underpin them are linked to the fundamental problems of governing contemporary societies as states corporations and private citizens grapple with a volatile economy and a culture that combines expanded personal freedom with relaxed social controls It is the risky unfixed character of modern life that underlies our accelerating concern with control and crime control in particular It is not just crime that has changed society has changed as well and this transformation has reshaped criminological thought public policy and the cultural meaning of crime and criminals David Garland s The Culture of Control offers a brilliant guide to this process and its still reverberating consequences Unhappy Dialogue James Whitfield,2013-01-10 This book is concerned with the origins of the often difficult relationship between the Metropolitan Police and London's West Indian community and is the first detailed account of the relationship between them during the crucial early decades of large-scale immigration. It shows how and why the early seeds of mistrust between police and black immigrants were sown, culminating in the subsequent riots and public enquiries, in particular the Scarman and MacPherson enquiries. Drawing upon a wide range of interviews as well as detailed archival research, this book also sheds new light on the relationship between the Home Secretary and the Metropolitan Police Commissioner in the post-war period, the cultures and subcultures within the Met and the different priorities to be found within its rank structure, the nature of cultural and ethnic prejudice in the Met at the time, its self-imposed alienation from the community it served and the Met's lack of commitment at the highest level to community and race relations training. All these issues are examined in the broader context of British society in the 1950s and 1960s, providing a prism through which to explore the broader context of race relations in Britain in the post-war period.

Western Maternity and Medicine, 1880-1990 Janet Greenlees, Linda Bryder, 2015-10-06 The contributors to this collection look into the experiences of women in the Western world going through pregnancy and birth over the last hundred years. Save the Womanhood! Samantha Caslin, 2018-04-16 The history of the women who travelled through Liverpool in search of work and adventure and the women who tried to stop them. Save the Womanhood is a fascinating new history about promiscuity, prostitution and the efforts of local social purists to save working class women from themselves.
