Personal and Vocational Interplay in Identity Building Jeannette G. Friend, 1973 Personal and Vocational Interplay in Identity Building Jeannette G. Friend, 1973 Career Development in Childhood and Adolescence, 2007-01-01 In the past few years many career theorists have noted the dearth of literature in the area of career development in childhood and adolescence A growing need for integrating theory and research on the early stages of vocational development within a systemic life span developmental approach has been articulated This volume the first book dedicated to career development of children and adolescents provides a broad and comprehensive overview of the current knowledge about the key career processes that take place in this age group Each of the eighteen chapters represents an in depth examination of a specific aspect of career development with a focus on integrating modern career theory and ongoing research and further developing theory practice connections in understanding child and adolescent career behaviour Twenty six authors leading experts from eight countries provide a state of the art summary of the current thinking in the field and outline directions for future empirical work and practice Handbook of Identity Theory and Research Seth J. Schwartz, Koen Luyckx, Vivian L. Vignoles, 2011-06-22 Identity is one of the most extensively studied constructs in the social sciences Yet despite the wealth of findings across many disciplines identity researchers remain divided over such enduring fundamental questions as What exactly is identity and how do identity processes function Do people have a single identity or multiple identities Is identity individually or collectively oriented Personally or socially constructed Stable or constantly in flux The Handbook of Identity Theory and Research offers the rare opportunity to address the questions and reconcile these seeming contradictions bringing unity and clarity to a diverse and fragmented literature This exhaustive reference work emphasizes the depth and complexity of identity processes and domains and presents perspectives from many different theoretical schools and empirical approaches Contributing authors provide perspectives from psychology e g narrative social identity theory neo Eriksonian and from other disciplines e g sociology political science ethnic studies and the editors highlight the links between chapters that provide complementary insights on related subjects In addition to covering identity processes and categories that are well known to the field the Handbook tackles many emerging issues including Identity development among adopted persons Identity processes in interpersonal relationships Effects of globalization on cultural identity Transgender experience and identity Consumer identity and shopping behavior Social identity processes in xenophobia and genocide The Handbook of Identity Theory and Research lends itself to a wealth of uses by scholars clinicians and graduate students across many disciplines including social developmental and child school psychology human development and family studies sociology cultural anthropology gender ethnic and communication studies education and counseling Catalog of Copyright Entries. Student Voices on Inequalities in European Higher Education Fergal Finnegan, Barbara Merrill, Camilla Thunborg, 2014-04-03 This book focuses on the voices and experiences of non traditional students in European higher education It examines the impact that access to higher education is having on these students lives and discusses what this tells us about European education and society In particular it explores the multi dimensional nature of inequality in varied national contexts focusing on the issues of class gender ethnicity age and disability The book contributes to the on going debate about the changing nature of European higher education and argues that research based on the experiences of non traditional students can be used to improve policy and practice in tertiary education Drawing on biographical narrative interviews with non traditional students the book covers topics including the contemporary nature of inequality and how the various forms of inequality intersect and overlap in higher education and society the formation and transformation of learner identities the structural barriers faced by non traditional students the sources of student resilience and agency a comparison of patterns of inequality access and retention in various European countries the implications of these findings for practice and policies Student Voices on Inequalities in Higher Education will appeal to academics researchers policy makers and practitioners working in higher education institutions as well as people working in the field of widening participation adult education access and centres for teaching and learning It will also be of interest to postgraduate students in higher education

Social Cognition, Motivation, and Interaction: How Do People Respond to Threats in Social Interactions? Eva Jonas, Christina Mühlberger, 2018-01-12 If we want to understand people s responses to threats in social interactions we can distinguish between three levels of analysis On a social level of analysis we can describe people s interpersonal behavior on a cognitive level we can identify corresponding information processing mechanisms and on a neural level we can specify neural systems which underlie these processes In this Research Topic we want to present research connecting these three levels of analysis and propose their functional interconnection in social interaction We propose that threats in social interactions activate basic motivational processes which manifest in neural processes related to behavioral inhibition vs activation in a social situation This shapes our attention to new information and affects our cognitions about social identities belief systems and worldviews These changes in social cognition in turn affect people s behavior in social interactions and lead to corresponding reactions on behalf of the interaction partner Thus we assume that people s reactions to threat in interactions can be described as sequences of broader attentional processes resulting from basic motivational tendencies leading to specific social cognitions and subsequent behavior within social interactions We can analyze this sequence in order to contribute to a better understanding of social interactions The three levels of analyses social cognitive neural shed light on social interactions from different angles On the social level we can analyze how the behaviors of the interaction partners mutually affect each other and how this is accompanied by specific cognitive emotional and motivational processes On the cognitive level we can analyze people s perception of a social situation leading to attentional and reasoning processes with regard to their interaction partner s which may be accompanied by certain emotional and motivational processes and determines the behavior towards the partner s Finally we can focus on the
