Baked Goods Mario Martinez Martinez,Manuel Gómez Pallarés,2020-03-18 The lifestyle of humans is rapidly changing and correspondingly their needs and the current and future megatrends of the food market It is worth mentioning 1 the preference for natural simple and flexible diets that drive the further expansion of plant focused formulations 2 the focus on food sustainability food waste reduction and 3 the interest in healthy eating as the basis for good health The hectic routine and rapid urbanization in developed and developing regions respectively have shifted consumer preferences toward bread and baked foods which interestingly are often high in sugars and are categorized as having a high glycemic index Therefore it is of major importance to address the technological challenges of manufacturing baked goods with high physical and sensory quality that result in positive metabolic responses This Special Issue seeks to provide fundamental understanding in this area and novel strategies to improve the nutritional properties of baked goods including a decrease in starch bioaccessibility sugar reduction increase in fiber and or protein content and the improvement of phytochemical bioactivity This Special Issue will also cover studies on the physical and sensory improvements of baked goods that may provide a mechanistic understanding to minimize the loss of quality after the incorporation of nutritional improving ingredients such as edible byproducts proteins or fibers Last but not least studies focused on the reduction of additives clean label or fat and on the use of sourdough to improve the sensory properties of baked goods will also be included A Forgotten Landscape: How A Place Called Crockett's Corner Became The Maine Mall M.M. Drymon PhD,2015-10-25 A place called Crockett s Corner began as a seventeenth century colonial settlement that grew into a stable and sustainable nineteenth century American agrarian landscape During the twentieth century in a rapid but staged process the landscape was changed into an edge city These changes were the direct result especially after 1938 of prevailing public policies which acted to constrain some land uses while supporting others Landscape change has had unintended consequences including local social network destruction historic building demolition and unmitigated air and non point source water pollution Raising awareness of the deep history of this place may help empower advocates for historic preservation open space environmental protection and more sustainable land use practices in the future
