School Finance Litigation Mary Fulton,1993 Education Finance Litigation Stacy A. Richardson,2010 School Finance Litigation ,1984 Educational Finance Law R. Craig Wood,David C. Thompson,1993 This book offers an overview of educational finance law and examines constitutional challenges to state aid plans Chapter 1 provides an introduction to education finance litigation including the early history of education finance litigation and early education finance theory Chapter 2 discusses the states responsibilities for providing equal educational opportunities for public education The third chapter discusses the relationship between revenues state and local and equity horizontal and vertical Chapter 4 examines state finance distribution formulas and chapter 5 presents measurements of education finance equity that occur along the three dimensions of resource accessibility wealth neutrality and tax yield The sixth chapter examines two aspects the philosophical and constitutional of the basis for education finance challenges Overviews of early and contemporary education finance literature are presented in chapters 7 and 8 Chapter 9 offers an analysis of present strategies and lawsuits and the final chapter discusses the future of education finance issues Five tables three figures and a tables of cases are included LMI Summary of School Finance Litigation Kansas. Legislature. Legislative Research Department,2003 Challenging School Funding Policies Brett Detering,2003 From Briggs V. Elliott to Abbeville V. South Carolina Delia Bromell Allen,2018 One of the central questions of education finance is how much funding is enough to provide a specific quality of education Concern over the adverse effects of inadequate school funding on student achievement has led to multiple lawsuits throughout the United States However there still remains considerable debate over both the effect of school funding and education finance litigation on both effective policy and student achievement The purpose of this study is to explore the historical legal landscape of school funding litigation in South Carolina Inspired by the Abbeville v South Carolina 2014 ruling this study is important to the state of South Carolina because almost 70 years after the first school funding lawsuits were filed against the state the state Supreme Court has set a precedent for school funding litigation in South Carolina Using a legal research methodological approach this study focuses on the litigation strategies and adjudication of school finance lawsuits in South Carolina along with the implications to policy and student outcomes Situated at the intersection of law finance and politics this study also illuminates factors beyond the law and logic that possibly influenced judicial decisions in South Carolina s school funding cases The research questions guiding this study are 1 What is the relevant legal history of school funding litigation in South Carolina 2 What factors beyond law and logic were involved in school funding cases in South Carolina 3 What was the legislative response to the litigation decisions 4 How effective has school funding litigation been in improving funding and student outcomes How We Got where We are Robert F. Hall,Max E. Pierson,Illinois. Chancery Court (Cook County),1990* Some Perspectives on Recent School Finance Litigation Carlee Escue Simon,William E. Thro,R. Craig Wood,2012 Over the past forty years the highest court of virtually every State has confronted the same fundamental question is our State's school finance system constitutional. The history of school finance litigation consists of three waves. During the first wave which lasted from the late 1960s until the Supreme Court's decision in San Antonio Independent School District v Rodriguez the plaintiffs relied on the federal Equal Protection Clause. Essentially the plaintiffs asserted that all children were entitled to have the same amount of money spent on their education and/or that children were entitled to equal educational opportunities. equity suit. The second wave which lasted from the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision in Robinson v Cahill until early 1989 continued to pursue the equity theory but focused on Equality Guarantee Clauses of the State Constitutions. In contrast the third wave which began with the Montana, Kentucky and Texas decisions in 1989 and continues to the present involves the adequacy theory of school finance litigation. Under the adequacy theory the plaintiffs relying on the State Constitutions Education Clauses argue that the finance system is unconstitutional because some schools lack the money to meet minimum standards of quality. Given the volume of cases one would expect that the courts would eventually develop a coherent doctrine to decide school finance litigation. Yet despite substantial academic commentary courts continue to struggle with issues concerning justiciability and the appropriate constitutional standard. Recent decisions illustrate the point. For example in Florida a state trial court determined whether broad amorphous claims were justiciable. In South Carolina a trial court addressed the merits following remand from the State's highest Court. In Colorado the State Supreme Court issued an opinion that resolved justiciability while also establishing a constitutional standard for the trial court and giving significant guidance on both merits and remedial issues. The purpose of this article is to review and comment on these recent cases.

Most citizens know very little about how their schools are funded and even less about the school funding litigation that has shaped public school funding systems since Serrano v Priest. Nonetheless funding litigation has had a tremendous impact on public schools in the United States second only to the impact of the litigation associated with Brown v Board of Education. Since Serrano the highest courts in 36 states have issued opinions on the merits of funding litigation suits with 19 upholding state funding systems and 17 declaring state funding systems unconstitutional. A 2001 article titled 2 Serrano and Its Progeny: An Analysis of 30 years of School Funding Litigation reviewed school funding litigation since the Serrano decision. This article updates this research by providing brief reviews of the most recent and significant school funding litigation decisions including the most recent decisions in Claremont v Governor James, v Alabama Coalition for Equity, Tennessee Small School Systems v McWherter, Lake View v Huckabee, DeRolph v State and Campaign for Fiscal Equity CFE v State This article also discusses possible future directions in this litigation based on an analysis of these recent state high court cases and the litigation since Serrano v Priest School Finance Litigation Dore Van Slyke, Alexandra Tan, Martin Orland, Anna Dannegger, Finance Project, 1994 Assessing Success in School Finance Litigation Margaret E. Goertz, Michael Weiss, 2009 Education finance policy in New Jersey has been shaped by over 30 years of school finance litigation Through its decisions in Robinson v Cahill 1973 1976 and Abbott v Burke 1985 2005 the justices of New Jersey's supreme court have defined the state's constitutional guarantee of a thorough and efficient education set parameters for how the state's urban schools should be funded and provided guidance on how education dollars should be spent in these communities the so called Abbott districts In January 2008 the legislature enacted a new funding formula the School Finance Reform Act of 2008 which jettisons the court's remedies The court upheld the constitutionality of this law in its 20th Abbott ruling issued in May 2009 The purpose of this paper is to examine the impact of court mandated school finance reform in New Jersey and describe the School Finance Reform Act SFRA of 2008 and its potential impact The first section of this paper provides the demographic and economic context for education policy in New Jersey The second and third sections describe how the court has defined educational success or adequacy over the last 30 years and how New Jersey measures an adequate education The fourth section looks at the impact of school finance reform on education spending taxation and student achievement The fifth section describes SFRA and its impact and the most recent round of litigation Appended are 1 Regular Education Budget per Pupil Districts Grouped by Property Wealth per Pupil 1975 76 through 2007 08 CPI Adjusted 2 Regular Education Budget per Pupil Districts Grouped by Property Wealth per Pupil 1984 85 through 2007 08 Abbott Districts Separated CPI Adjusted and 3 School Tax Rates Districts Grouped by Property Wealth per Pupil 1984 85 through 2007 08 Abbott Districts Separated CPI Adjusted Contains 6 figures 7 tables and 17 footnotes School Finance Litigation, 2007 Over the past several decades a series of lawsuits have challenged funding disparities that exist among school districts within the state Spurred by concerns that such disparities discriminated against students in poor school districts or resulted in an inadequate education school finance plaintiffs began filing lawsuits in federal and state courts based on theories involving educational equity or adequacy This report provides an analysis of litigation regarding school financing including an overview of the legal issues involved in such litigation and a description of the leading school finance cases at both the federal and state level The Tangible Impact of School Finance Litigation on Student Achievement Courtney Erin Lockridge, 2012
