National parks are one of the most important and successful institutions in global environmentalism Since their first designation in the United States in the 1860s and 1870s they have become a global phenomenon The development of these ecological and political systems cannot be understood as a simple reaction to mounting environmental problems nor can it be explained by the spread of environmental sensibilities Shifting the focus from the usual emphasis on national parks in the United States this volume adopts an historical and transnational perspective on the global geography of protected areas and its changes over time It focuses especially on the actors networks mechanisms arenas and institutions responsible for the global spread of the national park and the associated utilization and mobilization of asymmetrical relationships of power and knowledge contributing to scholarly discussions of globalization and the emergence of global environmental institutions and governance

The Politics of Nature and Science in Southern Africa Maano Ramutsindela, Giorgio

Miescher, Melanie Boehi, 2016-09-12 This book brings together recent and ongoing empirical studies to examine two relational kinds of politics namely the politics of nature i e how nature conservation projects are sites on which power relations play out and the politics of the scientific study of nature These are discussed in their historical and present contexts and at specific sites on which particular human environment relations are forged or contested This spatio temporal juxtaposition is lacking in current research on political ecology while the politics of science appears marginal to critical scholarship on social nature Specifically the book examines power relations in nature related activities demonstrates conditions under which nature and science are politicised and also accounts for political interests and struggles over nature in its various forms The ecological socio political and economic dimensions of nature cannot be ignored when dealing with present day environmental issues Nature conservation regulations are concerned with the management of flora and fauna as much as with humans Various chapters in the book pay attention to the ways in which nature science and politics are interrelated and also co constitutive of each other They highlight that power relations are naturalised through science and science related institutions and projects such as museums botanical gardens wetlands parks and nature reserves

The Culture of Hunting in Canada Jean L. Manore, Dale Miner, 2011-11-01

The Culture of Hunting in Canada is about a pivotal but little studied aspect of Canadian history culture and society It covers elements of the history of hunting from the pre colonial period until the present in all parts of Canada featuring essays by practitioners and scholars of hunting and by pro and anti hunting lobbyists The result crosses the boundaries between scholarship and personal reflection and between academia and advocacy The essays collected here address important historical and contemporary issues regarding the culture and practice of hunting Topics include hunting identities conservation and its relationship to hunting tensions between hunters and non hunters and between Aboriginal and non Aboriginal hunting groups hunting ethics debates over hunting practices and regulations animal rights and gun control The discussion involves consideration of the social political and economic context as well as class and racial tensions between sport hunters and subsistence hunters The Culture of Hunting in Canada makes an unprecedented contribution to the study of hunting in Canada and its role in our culture It will appeal to sociologists anthropologists and historians of hunting culture wildlife biologists natural resource managers and environmentalists and not least hunters and anyone interested in the culture of hunting Nature Sir Norman Lockyer,1877 The Nature-study

Mulligan,2012-04-27 British imperialism was almost unparalleled in its historical and geographical reach leaving a legacy of entrenched social transformation in nations and cultures in every part of the globe Colonial annexation and government were based on an all encompassing system that integrated and controlled political economic social and ethnic relations and required a similar annexation and control of natural resources and nature itself Colonial ideologies were expressed not only in the progressive exploitation of nature but also in the emerging discourses of conservation At the start of the 21st century the conservation of nature is of undiminished importance in post colonial societies yet the legacy of colonial thinking endures What should conservation look like today and what indeed whose ideas should it be based upon Decolonizing Nature explores the influence of the colonial legacy on contemporary conservation and on ideas about the relationships between people, politics and nature in countries and cultures that were once part of the British Empire. It locates the historical development of the theory and practice of conservation at both the periphery and the centre firmly within the context of this legacy and considers its significance today. It highlights the present and future challenges to conservationists of contemporary global neo-colonialism. The contributors to this volume include both academics and conservation practitioners. They provide wide ranging and insightful perspectives on the need for and practical ways to achieve new forms of informed ethical engagement between people and nature. Tourism, Recreation and Regional Development Jean-Christophe Dissart, Jeffrey

Dehez, Jean-Bernard Marsat, 2016-03-03 What factors contribute to tourism and recreation development? How can we characterise stakeholder rationales and organisation modes to enhance tourism resources and foster tourism and recreation services? To what extent do tourism and recreation contribute to regional development? What changes are taking place in terms of new destinations, stakeholders, policy objectives? Bringing together scholars from the fields of planning, economics, sociology, management studies and geography, this book examines cross-cutting issues in tourism and recreation with the aim of developing an extended view of leisure time. Focusing mainly on France with comparison to the experience of Northern and Southern European countries and North America, it combines a diverse range of case studies to address issues such as contrasting rural dynamics, changing public policies, sustainable development imperatives, evolving user behaviour and increasingly diverse recreation activities and stakeholder organisation. Specific topics are highlighted such as the role of social capital or culture as factors of recreation development, resort organisation from international and experience-based perspectives and the usefulness of the capability approach to evaluate tourism impacts on local development. Emphasising policy recommendations to help public or collective action on the issues and presenting emerging trends in the field, this book should be of interest to students, scholars and stakeholders in tourism, recreation, planning and management. Tropical

Nature Guillaume Blanc, Mathieu Guérin, Grégory Quenet, 2025-03-01 Across Africa and South East Asia, the impulse to protect nature often dovetails with the domination of local people. From mass displacement to severe restrictions on land use and daily acts of violence, conservation work risks reproducing Eurocentric modes of colonialism and worsening the effects of the climate crisis. In this insightful and wide-ranging study of the colonial history of conservation, Tropical Nature seeks to provide a much-needed history of the Global South from its own perspective. Comparing case studies ranging from Ali Bongo to Gabon to the postcolonial African itinerary of the agronomist Arthur Bunting, this volume advances a small-scale global history that deciphers the relations binding human societies to the non-human world.
