Russian civil-military relations and the origins of the second Chechen war Sz&aszdi, Lajos F., 2008-08-29 This book has relevance for those interested in understanding Russia's course in international relations under the leadership of Vladimir Putin. This book will inform the reader and is especially relevant in light of the events of 2008 in the Caucasus and the war in Georgia in particular. The author explains the ideology of Neo Eurasianism which in turn inspires the policy thinking of the Kremlin. Also studied is Putin's origins in the KGB from the previous posts of Secretary of the Security Council and Director of the FSB and his rise to power in the crucial year of 1999 when he became Russian Prime Minister. The author highlights the continuing trend of appointing high ranking officers of the Russian intelligence community to senior positions in the government studying this in the context of Russian civil military intelligence relations. The author reached the conclusion back in 2003 that the members of Russian intelligence hold the reins of power above the civilian and military elements of the Russian government. The author returns to the Kosovo Crisis of 1999 discussing also the motives that led the Kremlin and Putin to invade Chechnya for a second time in a decade. Parallels can be drawn to the 2008 Russian invasion of Georgia and the roots of the Neo Eurasianist ideology that is behind the two invasions are examined. This book will help the reader understand Russia's current and future distribution of power in the Caucasus, the Balkans and the world at large. Moscow's search for a multipolar world and its opposition to U.S. hegemony.

Options for Combining the Navy's and the Coast Guard's Small Combatant Programs Eric Jackson, Eric Jackson Labs, United States. Congressional Budget Office, 2009. As part of their long term procurement strategies the Navy and the Coast Guard are each in the process of developing and building two types of small combatants. The Navy is building two versions of its new littoral combat ship and the Coast Guard is building replacements for its existing classes of high endurance cutters and medium endurance cutters. Although all four types of ship are about the same size they are designed to perform different missions. If the Navy's and Coast Guard's plans for their small combatant programs are fully implemented the two services combined will spend over 47 billion over the next 20 years purchasing 83 of those ships. In light of the many pressures on the budgets of the Navy and the Coast Guard some policymakers and analysts have questioned whether the services could combine their small combatant programs in ways that still meet their requirements but save money. This Congressional Budget Office CBO paper prepared at the request of the Ranking Member of the Senate Budget Committee examines three alternatives that might allow the Navy and the Coast Guard to consolidate their small combatant programs.

Planning for War at Sea Evan Wilson, Paul M. Kennedy, 2025-02-04. How have navies contemplated possible enemies? How did they learn or fail to learn once operations began? How does this analysis inform today's planning for future conflict? These questions guide the noted historians and naval strategists who contributed to Planning for War at Sea. A central theme is the regular failure of navies' best laid plans. Covering four centuries of naval warfare the chapters illustrate the challenges all navies faced when considering possible enemies. Even during the Age of Sail ships were among the most expensive and long term national endeavors. Navies therefore planned well in advance for future wars usually without knowing their adversaries or how they would fight them at sea Building a capable navy requires sustained investment in naval infrastructure long before the fighting starts In the final chapters naval strategists expand on this historical analysis to address how effectively or ineffectively today s three leading navies Russia China and the United States have configured themselves during the post Cold War era in preparing for future great power conflict This collection is an important work for strategists scholars and policymakers Books in Print ,2004
