Offender Rehabilitation Effective Correctional Intervention

Francis T. Cullen, Paul Gendreau

Offender Rehabilitation Effective Correctional Intervention:

Offender Rehabilitation Francis T. Cullen, Brandon K. Applegate, 1997 Since the early 1970s there has been a sustained attack on the idea that the purpose of the correctional system should be to rehabilitate criminals This volume begins by reviewing the attack on offender treatment and then focuses in detail on the revisionist movement to reaffirm rehabilitation

Offender Rehabilitation in Practice Gary A. Bernfeld, David P. Farrington, Alan W. Leschied, 2003-01-10 Documented evidence suggests that community safety is best achieved through policies promoting human services rather than relying totally on prisons and that promoting intervention in an individual's own environment known as ecological integrity is closely associated with effective intervention This is the first book to focus on the transfer of knowledge of worldwide effective offender rehabilitation programs Prominent researchers and practitioners in the criminal justice field have contributed their extensive knowledge of what it takes to implement effective correctional practices with ecological integrity Reviews real world challenges of program effectiveness and survival Offers effective evidence based innovative alternatives to imprisonment of offenders Offers a common multi level systems perspective as a framework for the international case studies featured The first book to focus on the transfer of knowledge and best practice through the concept of technology transfer

The Future of Correctional Rehabilitation Ronen Ziv, 2017-08-23 In the aftermath of Martinson's 1974 nothing works doctrine scholars have made a concerted effort to develop an evidence based corrections theory and practice to show what works to change offenders Perhaps the most important contribution to this effort was made by a group of Canadian psychologists most notably Donald Andrews James Bonta and Paul Gendreau who developed a treatment paradigm called the Risk Need Responsivity RNR model which became the dominant theory of correctional treatment This approach was more recently challenged by a perspective developed by Tony Ward Shadd Maruna and others called the Good Lives Model GLM Based in part on desistance research and positive psychology this model proposes to rehabilitate offenders by building on the strengths offenders possess GLM proponents see the RNR model as a deficit model that fixes dynamic risk factors rather than identifying what offenders value most and using these positive factors to pull them out of crime Through a detailed examination of both models theoretical and correctional frameworks The Future of Correctional Rehabilitation Moving Beyond the RNR Model and Good Lives Model Debate probes the extent to which the models offer incompatible or compatible approaches to offender treatment and suggests how to integrate the RNR and GLM approaches to build a new and hopefully more effective vision for offender treatment A foreword by renowned criminologist Francis T Cullen helps put the material into context This book will be of much interest to scholars and students studying correctional rehabilitation as well as practitioners working with offenders

Offender Rehabilitation and Treatment James McGuire, 2003-04-11 Criminal behaviour continues to be a matter of major public concern How society should respond to it and what should be done with those who repeatedly offend remain hotly disputed topics of conversation Offender Rehabilitation and Treatment draws together internationally renowned experts from the United Kingdom Europe North America and Australia Chapters summarise some of the most recent and exciting developments in this field and offer a systematic knowledge based approach to the effective reduction of criminal behaviour Offers coverage of a wide range of key topics in this area Links theory research and practice in a coherent and accessible style International focus with examples and authors from a number of countries

The Re-Emergence of Correctional Intervention Ted Palmer,1992-03-30 In this decade growth centred intervention has re emerged as a legitimate approach to the rehabilitation of criminals and now plays an accepted role with serious offenders This role involves skill development methods control surveillance techniques psychologically oriented programmes and combinations of these procedures This book describes the role past present and future of rehabilitation within the context of other correctional approaches including the justice model philosophy Palmer presents an intervention framework and a related theoretical structure that can assist in programme development in intervention planning for offenders and in understanding as well as evaluating change processes

Assessing Correctional Rehabilitation Francis T. Cullen,Paul Gendreau,2012-07-17 A theme that has persisted throughout the history of American corrections is that efforts should be made to reform offenders In particular at the beginning of the 1900s the rehabilitative ideal was enthusiastically trumpeted and helped to direct the renovation of the correctional system e g implementation of indeterminate sentencing parole probation a separate juvenile justice system For the next seven decades offender treatment reigned as the dominant correctional philosophy Then in the early 1970s rehabilitation suffered a precipitous reversal of fortune The larger disruptions in American society in this era prompted a general critique of the state run criminal justice system Rehabilitation was blamed by liberals for allowing the state to act coercively against offenders and was blamed by conservatives for allowing the state to act leniently toward offenders In this context the death knell of rehabilitation was seemingly sounded by Robert Martinson s 1974b influential nothing works essay which reported that few treatment programs reduced recidivism This review of evaluation studies gave legitimacy to the antitreatment sentiments of the day it ostensibly proved what everyone already knew Rehabilitation did not work In the subsequent quarter century a growing revisionist movement has questioned Martinson s portrayal of the empirical status of the effectiveness of treatment interventions Through painstaking literature reviews these revisionist scholars have shown that many correctional treatment programs are effective in decreasing recidivism More recently they have undertaken more sophisticated quantitative syntheses of an increasing body of evaluation studies through a technique called meta analysis These meta analyses reveal that across evaluation studies the recidivism rate is on average 10 percentage points lower for the treatment group than for the control group However this research has also suggested that some correctional interventions have no effect on offender criminality e g punishment oriented programs while others achieve substantial reductions in recidivism i e approximately 25 percent This variation in program success has led to a search for those principles that distinguish effective treatment interventions from ineffective ones There is theoretical and empirical support for the conclusion that the rehabilitation programs that achieve the greatest reductions in recidivism use cognitive behavioral treatments target known predictors of crime for change and intervene mainly with high risk offenders Multisystemic treatment is a concrete example of an effective program that largely conforms to these principles In the time ahead it would appear prudent that correctional policy and practice be evidence based Knowledgeable about the extant research policymakers would embrace the view that rehabilitation programs informed by the principles of effective intervention can work to reduce recidivism and thus can help foster public safety By reaffirming rehabilitation they would also be pursuing a policy that is consistent with public opinion research showing that Americans continue to believe that offender treatment should be an integral goal of the correctional system Religion, the Community, and the Rehabilitation of Criminal Offenders Thomas P O'Connor, 2013-01-11 Explore the relationship between faith based programs religion and offender rehabilitation This book reports on current research from several disciplines to help the reader understand the nature and impact of the relationship between faith based programs religion and offender rehabilitation Religion the Community and the Rehabilitation of Criminal Offenders is a unique resource there has been very little research published on this important topic President Bush's faith based initiative recognized that religion plays a role in the justice system and corrections that is overlooked but essential it increases the role of community and caring in the system in a unique and important way This pathbreaking book points the way toward a system of faith based programs that are not only effective but also economical as these programs are often staffed by volunteers Religion the Community and the Rehabilitation of Criminal Offenders addresses important questions regarding the importance and effectiveness of faith based rehabilitation programs including What is the relationship between prison religion and offender rehabilitation What motivates inmates to become involved with religious programs and activities What is the prison chaplain's role in rehabilitation Are certain religious denominations more effective than others in preventing crime delinquency and recidivism How does religious activity help inmates adjust to the prison environment What do inmates have to say about the religious programs they encounter within the system How did Islam develop within American correctional institutions and what changes has the movement gone through in recent years Why do female African American inmates tend to resist conversion to Islam while their male counterparts embrace the Muslim faith in increasing numbers How can sacred texts and social theory be utilized as teaching tools and intervention strategies in the transformation processes of men incarcerated for violent crimes A fascinating study from the Sing Sing prison and more The Oxford Handbook of Prisons and

Imprisonment John D. Wooldredge, Paula Smith, 2018-03-09 Research on prisons prior to the prison boom of the 1980s and 1990s focused mainly on inmate subcultures inmate rights and sociological interpretations of inmate and guard adaptations to their environment with qualitative studies and ethnographic methods the norm In recent years research has expanded considerably to issues related to inmates mental health suicide managing special types of offenders risk assessment and

Taking Stock Francis T. Cullen, 2017-07-05 Criminology is in a period of much theoretical ferment Older theories have been revitalized and newer theories have been set forth The very richness of our thinking about crime however leads to questions about the relative merits of these competing paradigms Accordingly in this volume advocates of prominent theories are asked to take stock of their perspectives Their challenge is to assess the empirical status of their theory and to map out future directions for theoretical development

The Restorative Prison Byron R. Johnson, Michael Hallett, Sung Joon Jang, 2021-09-05 Drawing on work from inside some of America's largest and toughest prisons this book documents an alternative model of restorative corrections utilizing the lived experience of successful inmates fast disrupting traditional models of correctional programming While research documents a strong desire among those serving time in prison to redeem themselves inmates often confront a profound lack of opportunity for achieving redemption In a system that has become obsessively and dysfunctionally punitive often fewer than 10% of prisoners receive any programming Incarcerated citizens emerge from prisons in the United States to reoffend at profoundly high rates with the majority of released prisoners ending up back in prison within five years In this book the authors describe a transformative agenda for incentivizing and rewarding good behavior inside prisons rapidly proving to be a disruptive alternative to mainstream corrections and offering hope for a positive future The authors expertise on the impact of faith based programs on recidivism reduction and prisoner reentry allows them to delve into the principles behind inmate led religious services and other prosocial programs to show how those incarcerated may come to consider their existence as meaningful despite their criminal past and current incarceration Religious practice is shown to facilitate the kind of transformational identity work that leads to desistance that involves a change in worldview and self concept and which may lead a prisoner to see and interpret reality in a fundamentally different way With participation in religion protected by the U S Constitution these model programs are helping prison administrators weather financial challenges while also helping make prisons less punitive more transparent and emotionally restorative This book is essential reading for scholars of corrections offender reentry community corrections and religion and crime as well as professionals and volunteers involved in correctional counseling and prison ministry
