Development and Developers Simon Guy, John Hanneberry, 2008-04-15 This book presents for the first time an interdisciplinary view of property development and property developers Fourteen contributors are brought together here from leading researchers and respected practitioners including property analysts economists geographers planners and sociologists This rounded picture of property research explores the development of quantitative and qualitative research methods theories ranging from mainstream economics to social constructivism the inter relationships between the economic and the social and between individuals and organisations and their environments Development and Developers highlights the benefits of different research approaches and methods demonstrating how a more inclusive multidisciplinary view of property research will connect to wider debates in urban studies

Making Space Andrew MacLaran, 2014-04-04 Making Space studies the built environment by examining the private sector forces responsible for its development and the urban planning systems put in place to influence guide and manipulate its outcomes The first part provides a theoretical context for understanding the functions of the property development sector and the state's interventions through the medium of urban planning It analyses the relationship between planning and development and focuses on the increasingly widespread adoption of more pro active entrepreneurial planning agendas as a response to a growing disenchantment with traditional regulatory approaches The second part comprises case studies drawn from Australia New Zealand the USA the United Kingdom and Ireland which investigate the ways in which urban planning in different socio political contexts has influenced the outcomes of the property development process as well as the manner in which such planning systems have changed in order to enhance their influence

The Business of Greening Stephen Fineman, 2017-10-19 The Business of Greening first published in 2000 debates the relationship between business and greening and the future form this relationship could take The book gives voice to industrial actors employees employers managers technical specialists regulators in the context of their organizations within industrial sectors or as part of wider institution regimes The business of greening is taken as socially constructed shaped through tensions and competing interests It produces outcomes that are sometimes unexpected sometimes hopeful These outcomes are explored by examining a range of workers including estate agents bankers bakers printers regulators in small and large corporations Contributors write from a wide range of different social sciences including sociology geography organizational science and psychology This title will be of particular interest to students and researchers of environmental and business studies and to those who shape environmental policy in government and industry

Big Business and Economic Development Barbara Hogenboom, Alex E. Fernández Jilberto, 2006-12-21 Bringing together an international and multidisciplinary group of experts this is the first comprehensive volume to analyze conglomerates and economic groups in developing countries and transition economies Using sixteen in depth case studies it provides a comparative framework for the study of contemporary process of privatization economic and financial liberalization and neoliberal globalization Exploring the various causes and economic social and political effects of the rise of big business in Asia Latin America Africa and Eastern Europe the main issues that are examined include the nature of contemporary economic concentration the relations between local and external investors the impact on development and on economic and political control over its direction the new role of the state towards conglomerates and economics groups the effects of economic and political changes on the legitimacy of the state and large companies This volume is perfect as either a textbook or supplementary reading for students at all levels as well as researchers and governmental and non governmental professionals working and studying in the fields of international business and economic development

The Economics of Urban Property Markets Paschalis Arvanitidis, 2014-08-13 This book examines the relationship between the property market and urban economy The stimulus for this work was provided by the seemingly ever accelerating process of urban economic change and the noticeable failure of existing studies to adequately explore the pivotal role that the property market plays in this process Drawing on institutional economics the central argument of the book is that the property market as an institution is a mediator through which urban economic potential can be realised and served In developing this argument the book provides a critical realist ontological framework that advances understanding of the institutional structure of the economy and the complex interrelation between the institutional environment and human agency as well as a holistic theoretical framework of urban economic change where appropriate emphasis is placed on the specific mechanisms processes and dynamics through which the built environment is provided Arvanitidis also explores an institutional conceptualisation of property market efficiency defined in terms of the ability of the market institution to adapt its structure and to provide outcomes that the economy requires To inform empirical research on the developed concepts the book also offers a generic analytical approach specifying appropriate research methods and techniques for investigation along with a specific research design providing an operational framework that translates developed theory into empirical practice The book s primary contribution therefore lies in its delineation of a holistic research programme to conceptualise the property market as an institution and to explore its role within the urban economy

Modernization and the Crisis of Development in Africa Jeremiah I. Dibua, 2017-11-28 In this book Jeremiah I Dibua challenges prevailing notions of Africa s development crisis by drawing attention to the role of modernization as a way of understanding the nature and dynamics of the crisis and how to overcome the problem of underdevelopment He specifically focuses on Nigeria and its development trajectory since it exemplifies the crisis of underdevelopment in the continent He explores various theoretical and empirical issues involved in understanding the crisis including state class gender and culture often neglected in analysis from an interdisciplinary radical political economy perspective This is the first book to adopt such an approach and to develop a new framework for analyzing Nigeria's and Africa's development crisis It will influence the debate on the development dilemma of African and Third World societies and will be of interest to scholars and students of race and ethnicity modern African history class analysis gender studies and development studies

Development Theory and Practice in a Changing World Pádraig Carmody, 2019-04-09 Taking a critical and historical view this text explores the theory and changing practice of international development It provides an overview of how the field has evolved and the concrete impacts of this on the ground on the lives of people in the Global South

Development Theory and Practice in a Changing World covers the major theories of development such as modernisation and dependency in addition to anti development theories such as post modernism and decoloniality It examines the changing nature of immanent structural conditions of development in addition to the main attempts to steer them imminent development The book suggests that the era of development as a hegemonic idea and practice may be coming to an end at the same time as it appears to have achieved its apogee in the Sustainable Development Goals as a result of the rise of ultra nationalism around the world the increasing importance of securitisation and the existential threat posed by climate change Whether development can or should survive as a concept is interrogated in the book This book offers a fresh and updated take on the past 60 years of development and is essential reading for advanced undergraduate students in areas of development geography international studies political science economics and sociology

Managing Korean Business John G. Seok Bae, Chris Rowley, Tae-Won Sohn, 2012-12-06 During the 1990s the Korean economy was regarded as a possible role model to be followed by other newly industrializing economies but the Asian Crisis of 1997 destroyed this image Past practices challenges and responses are explored in this collection by an international group of authors

A Japanese Approach to Stages of Capitalist Development Robert Albritton, 2022-06-30 This book offers a novel treatment of one of the most important and long standing research agendas in critical political economy the theorizing of stages of capitalist development Albritton advances the work of Japanese economist Kozo Uno to explore capital accumulation and its ideological legal and political supports not only in the stages of mercantilism liberalism and imperialism but also in the post World War II capitalist stage of consumerism The power of Albritton's adoption of this Japanese approach resides in the crisp clarity it achieves over the way stage theorizing of capitalism draws on both economic theory and historical analysis In the new fully revised edition written with Richard Westra two new chapters are added One meticulously examines the tendencies of capitalism euphemized as globalization and financialization which followed the crisis of the stage of consumerism The other deals with current threats to civilization posed by burgeoning militarism environmental destruction and climate apocalypse The concluding chapter argues for the necessity of major social change to ensure a liveable future for humanity The book will be of interest to researchers and students of political economy and the history of economic thought as well as a wider audience interested in the transformation and crises of capitalism Capitalist Development in India's Informal Economy Elisabetta Basile,2013-06-07 This book explores the economy and society of Provincial India in the post Green Revolution period It argues that the low quality of capital development in India s villages and small towns is the joint outcome of the informal economic organisation that is strongly biased in favour of capital and of the complex stratification of the workforce along class and caste lines Focusing on the processes of growth induced by the introduction of the high yield varieties in agriculture the book demonstrates that a low road pattern of capitalist development has been emerging in provincial India firms compete over price and not over efficiency with a constant pressure to reduce costs in particular labour costs The book shows that low skilled employment prevails and low wages and poor working conditions are widespread Based on original empirical research the book makes a valuable contribution to the debate on varieties of capitalism in particular of the Global South It is of interest to academics working in the fields of Development Studies Political Economy and South Asian Studies

Property Companies and the Construction Industry in Britain Hedley Smyth, 1985-09-12 This book was the first detailed and systematic account of the property and construction sectors of the British economy Developing out of a materialist theoretical perspective Dr Smyth provides an alternative explanation of the different characteristics of the two sectors and rejects traditional notions of the backwardness of the construction sector The specific historical experience of the Second World War and the rebuilding it necessitated provides the basis of this analysis and it is argued that the particular divergencies of the construction sector stem from periods of wider economic crisis Similar periods of crisis have shaped the property sector which dependent upon the complex relationship between ground rent the value of the building and building rent cannot be understood in terms of urban rent Property companies and the construction industry in Britain challenges both established and radical thinking and its historical account of the development management and production of the built environment in the years since 1939 addresses some of the central concerns of human geography today

The New Urban Frontier Neil Smith, 2005-10-26 Why have so many central and inner cities in Europe North America and Australia been so radically revamped in the last three decades converting urban decay into new chic Will the process continue in the twenty first century or has it ended What does this mean for the people who live there Can they do anything about it This book challenges conventional wisdom which holds gentrification to be the simple outcome of new middle class tastes and a demand for urban living It reveals gentrification as part of a much larger shift in the political economy and culture of the late twentieth century Documenting in gritty detail the conflicts that gentrification brings to the new urban frontiers the author explores the interconnections of urban policy patterns of investment eviction and homelessness The failure of liberal urban policy and the end of the 1980s financial boom have made the end of the century city a darker and more dangerous place Public policy and the private market are conspiring against minorities working people the poor and the homeless as never before In the emerging revanchist city gentrification has become part of this policy of revenge Development, Transformations and the Human Condition Sumangala Damodaran, Smita Gupta, Sona Mitra, Dipa Sinha, 2024-10-31 The world is grappling to come up with alternative imaginations for transformation despite repeated crises inequalities and immiseration caused by the increasing dominance of the neo liberal capitalist framework and the collapse of twentieth century socialist models This book looks at concepts that form the core of development economics and political economy and brings together perspectives that explore the inextricable relationship between development and human rights social movements and the call for social transformation The essays in this volume honour the massive corpus of work across a large number of areas around development issues by the eminent economist Jayati Ghosh The book includes contributions by academics activists and practitioners and attempts to understand the socio economic causes of inequality poverty and oppression Divided into five parts corresponding broadly to key areas of Ghosh s work the book explores capitalism inequality and development gender and development political economy of trade and financial systems human development and human rights and music The volume situates Ghosh s work within a heterodox and broad based understanding of development processes and provides many insights towards a new vision that sets an agenda for further research as well as mobilisation This volume will be of great interest to students researchers practitioners and scholars working on the issues of development transformations political economy social science economics macroeconomics international economics politics and development studies
