"The Congressional Safety and Health Act of 1970 clearly states that common goal of safe and healthful working conditions for the first consideration in operating the business."

¹¹ "The only good reason for any business should be profit of every operation. Without question, if the money manager's responsibility is to his shareholders, it is to make them rich."

[illegible]

The personnel safety and health of each employee of this company is of primary importance. Protection of environmentally sensitive areas and resources is of equal importance. It is our goal to provide a safe and healthy working environment, without compromise. To the greatest degree possible, management will provide all mechanical and physical facilities required for personnel safety and health, in keeping with the highest standards.

[illegible]

"Our objective is a safety and health program that will reduce the number of injuries and illnesses to an absolute minimum, not merely by keeping safe, but by improving the total experience of operators similar to ours. Our goal is zero injuries and illnesses."

- Providing mechanical and physical safeguards to the maximum extent possible.
- Conducting safety and health inspections to find and correct unsafe conditions and health hazards.
- Establishing safety and health standards for the workplace, working conditions and practices, and to comply fully with the safety and health standards for each state.
- Training all employees in good safety and health practices.
- Providing necessary personal protective equipment, and instructions for safe use and care.
- Developing and enforcing safety and health rules, and requiring that employees comply with these rules.
- Use a combination of approaches.
- Conducting safety and health training, especially for those at high risk of injury and illness, and those at risk of fatal occupational injury and illness. The problem is that it will not happen again.
- Conducting safety and health inspections, and maintaining safety records and documentation. This documentation should not be changed except by the person who conducted the inspection, or the person who conducted the investigation.

On the other hand, the entire complexity of language is not limited to the lexicon. It is also a matter of grammar, which is the set of rules that govern the structure of sentences. Grammar encompasses both morphology (the study of word formation) and syntax (the study of sentence structure). The complexity of grammar is also a function of the language. For example, the grammar of English is more complex than the grammar of Spanish, which is more complex than the grammar of Chinese. The complexity of grammar is also a function of the context in which the language is used. For example, the grammar of English is more complex when used in a formal context than when used in an informal context.
