Price,2006 After identifying early conflicts between churches and baseball in the late nineteenth century Price examines the appropriation of baseball by the House of David an early twentieth century millennial Protestant community in southern Michigan Turning then from historic intersections between baseball and religion two chapters focus on the ways that baseball reflects religious myths First the omphalos myth about the origin and ordering of the world is reflected in the rituals and rules of the game Then the myth of curses is explored in the culture of superstition that underlies the game At the heart of the book is a sustained argument about how baseball functions as an American civil religion affirming and sanctifying American identity especially during periods of national crises such as wars and terrorist attacks Building on this analysis of baseball as an American civil religion two chapters draw upon novels by W P Kinsella and David James Duncan to explore the sacramental potential of baseball and to align baseball with apocalyptic possibilities The final chapter serves as a full confession interpreting baseball affiliation stories as conversion narratives In various ways The 1967 American League Pennant Race Cameron Bright,2018-05-25 In 1967 in the midst of a nail biting six week pennant race the Red Sox Tigers Twins and White Sox stood deadlocked atop the American League Never before or since have four teams tied for the lead in baseball's final month The stakes were high there were no playoffs the pennant winner went directly to the World Series Here for the first time all four teams are treated as equals The author describes their contrasting skill sets leadership and temperament The stress of such stiff and sustained competition was constant and there were overt psychological and physical intimidations playing a major role throughout the season The standings were volatile and so were emotions The players and managers varied some wilted or broke others responded heroically Sports Ethics in America Donald G.
